Way is Open to Servian Army to Advance on Stronghold—Bulgarians
Reported to Have Fired

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

London, Oct. 26.—The Turkish troops were the first to take the offensive in a desperate battle which ended in the fall of the town of Kuminova into the hands of the Servian troops, and opened up the way for their further advance on the stronghold of Uskup.

The Servian legion in London has received an official account of the fighting from which it appears that during a drizzling rain and heavy fog on Wednesday the Turkish troops advanced on the Servian position five miles from Kuminova.

As soon as they came into touch with the Servian outposts heavy fighting began and lasted through the afternoon. Both armies suffered severe losses, but the Servians succeeded in staying the Turkish onslaught.

The battle was resumed at 1 o'clock Thursday morning, the Servians this time taking the offensive and attacking the Turkish troops who had entrenched themselves.

After an artillery duel the general advance was ordered by the Servian commander at 6 o'clock under the cover of the artillery to which the Turkish field guns replied vigorously.

The ground over which the Servian troops had to advance was open and the infantry men were exposed to a sweeping fire. Nevertheless, they stormed the Turkish trenches again and again until finally at the point of the bayonet they drove out the Ottoman troops.

It took the Servians four hours to clear the valley, but it was then found necessary before occupying Kuminova to take the heights on the right bank of the river to which the Turkish troops had retired in disorder.

At one period during the fight the Servian artillery annihilated three squadrons of Turkish cavalry and the Turkish losses are said to have numbered 5,000 killed and wounded, while twelve of their field guns were captured.

Servian casualties were also heavy. They lost many officers, including two regimental commanders and several battalion commanders. The Servian advance guard is now before Uskup according to the report.

At the town of Novipazar farther to the north there was also a brisk battle. After the town was taken the Turks attempted to re-take it, but were repulsed and virtually annihilated.

Set On Fire.

Sofia, Bulgaria, Oct. 26.—The report of the town of Adrianople having been set on fire by the Bulgarian artillery has been received by private dispatches here. The Bulgarian troops have taken the outlying forts of Mainas, Haveras and Sullier lying to the north and northwest of the city and are also occupying stations in extreme outskirts of the town. 1,800 prisoners have fallen into the hands of the Bulgarians who arrived here yesterday from Mustapha Pashas. The entire absence of Turkish officers among the captured at Kirk-Kislesseh is much commented on as the first report stated that the whole garrison had been taken. The Bulgarian army is reported to be advancing along the frontiers and the Turks are retreating in panic toward Constantinople.

Many Bulgarians.

Constantinople, Oct. 26.—Strong columns of Bulgarian troops have been observed in front of the northern and western defense of Adrianople according to a dispatch from the city. It is supposed they are also strengthening their attacking lines in front of the northeastern forts. The exodus of the civilian population from the fighting zone continues.

A crowded train coming from Adrianople was derailed yesterday morning, interrupting traffic for 24 hours. The Turkish counsel of ministers yesterday discussed the question of a possible intervention of the powers and decided not to entertain any such proposal at the present moment. A telegram from Saloniki denies the Greek troops have landed at Katerina in the Gulf of Saloniki.

Occupied Koplik.

London, Eng., Oct. 26.—The Montenegrin army under General Martinovich has occupied Koplik near Tarakesch, from which position its artillery can be turned on the forts of the Turkish city of Scutari according to official reports received by the Montenegrin counsel general here. The other Montenegrin army commanded by Gen. Vukitch has defeated a force of Turkish irregulars who entrenched at Rogeva endeavoring to prevent the advance of the Montenegrans to Ipek. The Turks were put to flight and abandoned two field guns and some ammunition and baggage. Gen. Vukitch is now advancing toward Ipek.

Another Fort.

Belgrade, Serbia, Oct. 26.—The Turkish stronghold of Uskup is reported in a telegram which reached private persons here today to have been taken by the allied Servian and Bulgarian army.

OF REBEL LEADEREx-Provisional President of Mexico
Urges in Senate Against Taking Hasty Action in Case of Felix Diaz.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Mexico City, Mex., Oct. 26.—Felix Diaz, ex-provisional president, speaking in the Senate at a late hour last night in connection with the trial of Felix Diaz, said that he had always stood for justice while he occupied the office of president and would continue to retain the same attitude as senator. He made a plea for an investigation into the revolutionary movement led by Diaz and warned the country and the senate against hasty action. No move has been taken for the committal trial of Felix Diaz at Vera Cruz has been reported in reports here up to 2:30 this morning.

On her way to the county jail here today, Mrs. Lindoff asserted she had been in communication with the spirits of the departed who assured her she would be acquitted of the charges preferred against her. She said she could foresee the jury voting a verdict of not guilty. Mrs. Lindoff is a spiritualist and claims to be a medium.

Admits Crime.

Mexico City, Oct. 26.—Tight lipped and scowling Felix Diaz, leader of the short lived revolt at Vera Cruz, sat in the midst of a group of revolutionists who appeared before the court martial in the sports city today to be tried for treason. "I, alone, am responsible for the movement," the nephew of Mexico's former president told the court in making his statement. "I have known Col. Jose Diaz Ordaz for many years and I won him over to my side. The other officers did not even know where they were taken or why I had no accomplices."

Then the fallen revolutionist quietly took his seat, folded his arms across his breast and sat stolidly listening to the proceedings which ended in his execution. The calmness with which he faced the tribunal astounded the officers of the court. Desperate efforts to save the life of Diaz are being made by a host of influential men throughout the republic.

WISCONSIN WOODMEN
ORGANIZE TO BEAT
GOVERNOR M'GOVERNClaim State Executive Ignored Request to Remove Ekern—Find Karel a Friend of Fraternal Insurance.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 26.—The Evening Wisconsin tonight publishes the statement that following the decision of Judge Bradshaw of Des Moines, Iowa, declaring the increase in the rates of the Modern Woodmen of America null and void, Wisconsin members of the order will make an organized effort to bring about the defeat of Gov. McGovern for re-election. It is charged by members of the Woodmen that the governor is against fraternal insurance and that in the event of victory at the polls next month a bill will be presented to the next legislature which will entirely destroy fraternal insurance societies.

Discussing the fight by insurgent Woodmen to prevent an increase in rates, A. F. Barker, a member of the Wisconsin Assembly, an organization started for the purpose of preventing a raise in Woodmen rates said: "A circular is now being prepared by the secretaries of the Wisconsin Assembly to be sent to every camp in the state calling on members to assist the committee financially so that cases now pending in other states can be carried through the higher courts if appealed by the head officers."

Governor Ignores Lodge.

"Another and more important matter which the committee desires to call to the attention of members is the political situation in Wisconsin. At a recent convention of Woodmen in La Crosse, resolutions were adopted calling on Gov. McGovern to remove Insurance Commissioner Herman L. Ekern from office on account of his activity on the Woodmen rate question, and unless the governor complied with the request, the members were asked to use all honorable means to defeat him for re-election. These resolutions with a letter were forwarded to the governor, but he has completely ignored the matter."

"In the last session of the legislature the Mobile bill, a measure which if passed and enforced would entirely destroy all fraternal insurance, was introduced and part of it passed. It has been stated by parties connected with the head office of the Modern Woodmen of America and old line insurance companies, that if Francis E. McGovern is re-elected, the balance of the bill will be passed by the next legislature."

Woodmen For Karel.

Gov. McGovern joined the Woodmen as a social member during his campaign for district attorney and is known to favor the Mobile bill while his chief opponent, Judge John C. Karel, refused to join the order during his political campaign, but has been a fraternal worker for many years, and at a recent meeting of the Equitable Fraternal Union held at Neenah, Wis., he was a leader in the fight against the raise in rates.

"It is therefore plain which candidate the Woodmen may look to for support in their fight for life insurance and they should certainly support that candidate. There are between 60,000 and 80,000 Woodmen in Wisconsin, and their votes if united can practically control the election. All other fraternal societies should give this question their earnest consideration."

SENTIMENT CHANGING
THROUGH THE NATIONTAFT GAINS AS PEOPLE FEAR
MENACE OF FREE TRADE LEGISLATION.

ROOSEVELT OUT OF RACE

Director Mulvane of Taft Campaign
Issues Statement Based on Facts
From All Parts of the Country.

(Special Correspondence.)

Chicago, Oct. 26.—Every section of the country come reports of an awakening of the American people of the menace of free trade, together with their determination not to allow the election of a democratic candidate for the presidency.

Director Mulvane, in charge of the western bureau of the Republican National Committee, has been overwhelmed this week with information, through letters, personal visits and reports of recent polls, which demonstrates that the claim of 230 electoral votes for President Taft is conservative. In the closing days of the campaign there has been a tremendous swing toward Taft. The impossibility of Roosevelt's election is at last realized by even his most ardent admirers and they are convinced by the fact that if they throw their votes away upon its Third Term candidate they make possible the infliction of a democratic administration upon the country.

The issue is now squarely between Taft and Wilson, protection and free trade. Careful and impartial observers of the political situation long ago ascertained that the Third Term candidate could not possibly carry enough states to give him 266 votes in the electoral college but the claims of the Third Termers were so noisy and insistent that they misled the public. This week, however, the Republican National Committee gave wide publicity to a statement which showed the percentage of the republican vote which Roosevelt would have to secure in order to be elected. This was so convincing that it has put the quietus upon the Third Term candidate's pretensions. It is shown, for instance, that in Illinois it will be necessary for Roosevelt to secure the votes of seven out of every ten republicans in order to carry the state. In Kansas he must get eight out of every ten republicans. In Indiana he must get nine out of ten. Everywhere known the Third Term possibly receive this vote and as the same unattainable percentage prevails in practically every state, his election is absolutely impossible.

This showing is having a marked effect upon the voters. They are now brought face to face with the proposition that the fight is between Taft and Wilson and that every vote cast for Roosevelt aids in Wilson's election. Under these circumstances they are naturally declaring themselves for Taft.

This is not a free trade nation. The development of American industries under the beneficent policy of protection—a progress uninterrupted save for the four years of Democratic tariff-forfeiture-only administration—has convinced the American people that it would be not only dangerous, but absolutely destructive of business to suddenly place the control of the government in the hands of a party which solemnly declares that protection is unconstitutional. The organization of a "Prosperity League in Cincinnati, where several hundred business men have combined to help Taft's election, irrespective of their former politics, and the formation of Business Men's Taft leagues in Chicago and Kansas City with large numbers of representatives meeting in both cities banded together to work for Taft, are indications of the almost universal feeling. It is typical of the general situation that in an Illinois town recently the procession which preceded the Taft meeting was participated in by the solid and substantial business element of the town.

More than this, reports which reach the republican headquarters in this city indicate that a very large number of democrats propose to vote for Taft. In Montana where the prosperous wool industry is threatened by the free trade tariff legislation which would follow a democratic victory, the number of democrats who will support the President is placed at 5,000. In Iowa, judging from the polls which have been taken, the defection will be very large among democratic farmers and business men. At Ottumwa recently a prominent democrat made a speech for Taft in a public meeting. In Illinois, which the republican managers are now claiming for Taft by 50,000, it is known that there will be a large democratic vote for Taft, especially since there has been a split in the democratic ranks in Chicago, the Hearst-Harrison faction having been denounced by the Democratic National Committee as traitors. In fact, in every state the declarations of the prominent democrats that they are against any change in conditions have been most numerous and are increasing at a ratio which is giving the democrats considerable anxiety.

The democrats are endeavoring to counteract the running of the tide against them by insisting that Roosevelt is a dangerous factor in the presidential race. They hope to frighten Anti-Roose

MRS. WORRY.

Sport Snop Shots

by Dan M. Corley

Michigan will not meet the strong western football teams this year, but if she did there seems little question but that she would come off victorious. Yost has built up a great machine—perhaps the equal of the old teams that used to roll up such tremendous scores of six or eight years ago. Last Saturday's game with Ohio State showed that the Michigan line is almost impregnable. Now Yost is schooling his charges in offensive play and the proper handling of the forward pass, apparently with success.

Casey Hazerman, pitcher, threatens to sue the Boston Red Sox for a share in the world's series last season. The Boston Club paid $5,000 for Casey a year ago. He was released early in the season, but since then reported every day to Fenway park. He was ordered to report to Denver, whence he was bought, but refused because his salary was cut. He claims he is a member of the Red Sox and is to appeal to the National commission.

One of the most interesting matches between bantams to be pulled off this year has just been arranged for next month. The lads who will figure in it are Kid Williams, the great little bantam of Baltimore who recently shaded Johnny Coulton, the bantamweight champion of America, and Eddie Morgan, the English bantam champion who recently defeated Frankie Burns of Jersey City. Billy Gibson has signed the lads up, and the go will be for ten rounds.

The amateur athletic union will celebrate its twenty-fifth year as a governing body of amateur athletics in America on November 13. Many important matters will be discussed and the records made during this year will be passed upon. Several new and important rules and amendments will be considered.

Joe Mandot, the New Orleans lightweight, who fights champion Ad Wolgast in New Orleans on November 4, and also takes on Joe Rivers for a return bout at Vernon, Cal., Thanksgiving day afternoon, is to receive a guarantee of $10,000 from Tom McCarey, the Los Angeles fight promoter, for fighting Rivers. McCarey offered Mandot $7,500, but the New Orleans boy said he'd have to have $10,000 or he wouldn't consider the proposition.

Sam Wallach, brother of Leach Cross, the New York lightweight, is still trying to bring about a match between Leach and Ad Wolgast, the contest to be for ten rounds and to be decided in New York. ## GREAT BALLOON RACE TO START TOMORROW

Twenty-Three Contestants for James Gordon Bennett Trophy—Ten Nations Represented.

Stuttgart, Oct. 26.—Everything is in readiness for the great international balloon race for the James Gordon Bennett Trophy, which will start from here tomorrow, and in which ten nations will be represented by twenty-three contestants. Today, who are interested in aeronautics or aerial navigation are eagerly awaiting the signal which will announce the casting loose of the first starter in the race. The other entries will follow at ten-minute intervals.

No balloon race that has ever been held has given promise of the success that is predicted for this year's international contest. In the number of nations represented it eclipses the previous contests held in Paris, St. Louis, Berlin and Kansas City. The race will also establish a new record in regards to the size and power of the craft which will compete.

Besides the Bennett Cup, now held by Germany, as a result of her victory at Kansas City last year, the winners of the race will receive several other handsome trophies and liberal cash prizes. The city of Stuttgart will distribute cash prizes amounting to 50,000 marks among the seven contestants making the best records in the race. Each of the contestants will in addition receive a valuable trophy.

The United States has three entries in the contest. They are the balloons Kansas City II, and Uncle Sam, both of which will fly the colors of the Kansas City Aero Club, and the balloon Million Population Club of St. Louis.

Germany, Belgium, France, Austria and Switzerland had entered three balloons each, Italy two, and Denmark, England and Russia one each.

CLASS TEAMS PLAY EXCITING TIE GAME

Juniors and Seniors Fail to Decide Championship in Hard Struggle Yesterday.

In a battle with neither team having the advantage, the Senior and Junior teams struggled in a 0 to 0 tie at the Driving Park yesterday afternoon at the close of school. This game was the first of a series of games to decide the school championship, and as the title is unknown as yet, another game shall have to be played. Possibly next week, this deciding contest shall be staged, at which time the Juniors will have the ball at least five times within striking distance of the Seniors goal, and being unable to put it over. The Seniors had only one chance of scoring, when a pass was intercepted by them, placing the ball on the 5 yard line, from where they lost it on a fumble. The contest was hard fought, and a good game will decide the school championship, when these teams play their next game. The lineup last night was as follows:

Seniors	Juniors
Jailey, Grant	Savies
Broege, Siegle	Barnes
Pink, C.	Scienc
Craig	Monat
Kennedy	Callen
Razook	Budley
Groat, Judd	Dauborn
Allen	Hayes

"THE COMMON LAW" IS WELL PRESENTED

Dramatization of Chambers' Novel is Creditable Attraction at Myers Theatre Last Evening.

There is a fascinating interest about Robert W. Chambers' novel, "The Common Law," none of which is lost in the dramatization which was presented at the Myers theatre last evening with an able cast. The story of the love affair of Valerie West and Louis Neville with its tense dramatic situations appears to better advantage on the stage, in fact, than in its form as a "best seller." The possibility of elimination in a play adapted from a novel and the clever work of a capable company is largely responsible for the play's acceptability.

Kathryn Stevens as the manager, worldly-wise Rita, quick to perceive and analyze the intentions of those about her, was one of the strongest members of the cast. Dorothy Stanton as Valerie West was charming with a realization of the possibilities of her role. Henry King as Louis Neville, the young artist in love with Valerie his model, was good in his part and did some good emotional acting. Of other members of the cast Robert Smiley as the genial Sam Ogilvy with his manias for giving parties was one of the strongest, while Carl Jackson, in the part, the second duel quidam, played a difficult part in a realistic manner. Graydon Fox Burleson and Geo. Sinclair as Jimmie the janitor, with Cecilia Griffith as Mrs. Neville, completed the cast.

LINK AND PIN MEN AT ROUNDHOUSE GIVEN A HOLIDAY

Men Employed at Local Roundhouse Are Enjoying A Holiday. Very Much Surprised.

The men employed at the local roundhouse were very much surprised when a notice was posted yesterday afternoon telling them that they were to have a holiday. The notice came as a surprise to everyone and no reason can be given for the layoff. The master mechanic of Chicago, there are only a couple of machinists and boiler-makers working at the local shops today. Most of the men are enjoying the day off very much and hope that there will soon be another. Two of the men took a short trip to Chicago.

Work on the new yards that are being built in the vicinity of the Hudson factory will be resumed Monday. It was suspended the last of the week because the men that were employed were all Greeks and they have left for their homes.

Brakeman Pat Condon is laying off for a few days and will leave this evening for an extensive trip.

Claim Agent McGowan of Chicago, was in the city yesterday and made several settlements that were pending.

In a football game this morning, the Second Ward Stars defeated the Adams School team by the score of 12 to 5. Touchdowns were made for the Stars by Miller and McGinley, and for the Adams School by Murphy, Ryan and O'Brien, fullback and end for the school team were the two whose work shone in comparison with the poor playing of their teammates, and they saved their team from being beaten by a larger score. Kavelage, quarterback for the Stars, put up a fine game.

TRAINING SCHOOL NOTES.

Supt. H. C. Buell spoke to the training school students Friday, on the subject of Reading: "Learning to Read and Reading to Learn." The speaker outlined the steps in the process of learning to read as it is now taught in our best schools. The value of thoroughness was emphasized. The literary aspect of the subject was also dwelt upon, indicating the great value of forming the reading habit, and of an appreciation of good literature. Many country pupils are not trained in the use of the library books, and many leave school without getting any liking whatever for good readings. Teachers can do much to remedy this matter. Mr. Buell's remarks were greatly appreciated.

Several of the students have been taking lessons on the use of the typewriter. It is hoped that some may gain sufficient skill to be of practical value. Miss Florence Ryan visited the training school classes on Wednesday. The library is now quite fully catalogued. Another new card case has been secured, and the large number of subject cards made, out increases the usefulness of the books.

New forms for report cards, book reports, quarter and final records have been devised by the principal and will be in use hereafter.

The first quarter closes next week, November first, and the second quarter begins on Monday, November fourth. The following subjects are taken up during the second quarter: Word Analysis, Algebra, Methods of Teaching, Geography, and the Common School Manual.

Alice Cullen has been out of school for several days visiting at Elkhorn.

The last rhetorical program was given on Wednesday, and the following students appeared: Anna Forton, Hazel Lagan, Zetta Kealey, Mable Francis, and Grace Donnelly. Plans are being made to secure more rehearsals for these programs as the students are greatly in need of such practice.

The students have been taught the construction of some material especially adapted to the Halloween season. Good progress is made this year in the drawing and construction work. The work in agriculture will now be discontinued until next spring, at which time some practical out-of-door demonstration will be in order, including the gardens.

Two helpful letters from rural school teachers relative to the school gardens planted last spring, were lost in sending them to the printer. We hope these letters will be rewritten, and if so they will be published.

Various duties concerning the general welfare are delegated to committees. For example there is a dining committee and a reading table committee. One student acts as librarian and another sees that the pencil sharpener is kept sharp and well oiled. One important officer of the literary society is the historian who keeps a full account of all the doings of the school writing up the same every week or two.

On November 7th and 8th there will be no school on account of the meeting of the state teachers' association in Milwaukee. The training instructors are expecting to attend this meeting.

Last Friday the principal visited two country schools near Orlondville. All of the graduates of our school have now had their work inspected by the training school teachers.

Mary Cullen had the misfortune to injure her arm quite badly this week by falling. Margaret Vickerman went to Milton.

Junction, Wednesday afternoon, Vera Irving of Russell, Illinois, expects to enter the school at the beginning of the second quarter. Some of the young women are interested in the subject of woman suffrage.

SENTIMENT CHANGING THROUGH THE NATION

the campaign managers will now be directed toward forcing every republican to a realization that if he votes for Roosevelt he aids in the election of a democratic free trade candidate for president. Knowing that the democratic party is in the minority in this country, the democrats are naturally trying to divide the republican party. The division which unfortunately existed is now happily being closed.

It is extremely important that the republicans everywhere should make their majority as large as possible. In many localities which are locally democratic there is a disposition on the part of republican voters to remain at home because their votes will not influence the result in connection with local tickets. They must not forget, however, that it is the total vote of the state which counts in the election of presidential electors and votes cast even in a democratic locality are important in affecting the general result.

During these last days of the campaign there is great activity at the republican national headquarters here. Literature is being sent in large quantities to meet late and pressing demands while a thousand speakers would be necessary to meet all the requests which are now coming in from every state. It is evident, after all, that the last week of the campaign is the one which will have the most effect upon the result, and the republican managers are greatly encouraged to find that the tide toward Taft is growing larger and more influential every day.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

The law of the harvest is to reap more than you sow. Sow an act and you reap a habit; sow a habit and you reap a character; sow a character and you reap a destiny.—George D. Boardman.

The periods of seed time and harvest date back to the dawn of history, and the soil was ever so ready to respond, that for many centuries the most primitive methods were employed in its cultivation.

The failure of crops back in the years of the Egyptian famine, indicates that agriculture was a prominent feature in the world of industry at that time, and centuries later when the Master painted the word picture of the "sower who went forth to sow," the fact was again emphasized that confidence in the harvest had not been destroyed.

And so down through the centuries that have followed, every generation has furnished its full quota of tillers of the soil, until today the great army of artisans, wearing the proud title of farmers, represent the backbone of stability in many lands, and especially in this country which we delight to call our home.

The great west and northwest, with their vast expanse of prairies and fertile plains, have long been alluring fields for young men, and the wilderness has been made to blossom as the rose as the virgin soil responded to their efforts, but the desire to possess land and still more land has become a mania, and the result is that the surface of the soil has been skimmed over, and its capabilities neglected.

Not satisfied with "the law of the harvest, to reap more than you sow," it remained for Luther Burbank, the plant wizard of California, to demonstrate by years of tireless experiment that nature was ready to reward the intelligent worker with a two-fold blessing by doubling the product of his toil.

Mr. Burbank started as a boy on a worn-out Massachusetts farm. His first effort was to germinate the seed for early corn, and he was rewarded by having his crop on the market two weeks before his neighbors at a price to correspond.

While science has been busy in the realm of mechanical industry, this great American has devoted his life to developing plant life on his little eight-acre farm at Santa Rosa, California. A writer, who recently visited his place, says:

"He uses no means in guiding nature which are not within the easy reach of every one to use.

"His whole array of tools and equipment could be duplicated for a few dollars.

"Probably 90 per cent. of the farmers of America have more money invested in appliances than Luther Burbank has.

"And his whole life of experiment has been conducted upon a tract of land comprising less than eight acres, most of which is taken up by the residence and by lawns; so that the principal work-ground has been a three-acre section of the eight-acre plot.

"What Luther Burbank has done, he now proposes to teach others to do.

"That has been the ideal of his life—to place in convenient form a detailed working exposition of his methods, so that every man, in the measure of his ability, may be his own Burbank—so that every man who raises things from the soil, either for pleasure or for profit, may apply the Burbank methods on his own land to those very plants from which he derives his enjoyment or his income.

"For more than nine years the preparation of the Burbank manuscript has been under way.

"During those nine years Mr. Burbank has unwaveringly held to his intention to make his writings clear, plain, instructive and practical, so that the methods he has employed can be put to the widest use by the greatest number.

"In order that this message of California's most illustrious citizen may go forth to the world with fitting sponsorship, The Luther Burbank society has been organized.

"Chartered by the state of California, the society has no capital stock, no power to incur debts or earn profits. Its home is in the old Luther Burbank homestead in Santa Rosa, and it numbers among its members some of the foremost men and women in America.

"Its purpose is solely to assist Luther Burbank in the final preparation of his writings and to aid in the widespread dissemination of his teachings, so that the greatest number may profit in the greatest degree, to teach the thousands of Burbank lessons—as simple and as profitable as the early corn lesson—to a world which depends upon the soil for everything it has."

But this desecration was not intended to be a treatise on agriculture. The work of Luther Burbank, however, merits the widest publicity, and every publisher in the land can well afford to recognize this great philanthropist who teaches how to double production, without additional expense.

Mr. Boardman had in mind a different kind of seed and a different class of sowers, when he wrote the little paragraph which heads this article.

How true it is that the sowing of an act produces a habit, not always a bad habit, but a habit, nevertheless. The boy who walks into a saloon and takes his first glass of beer has sown the seed which may produce a harvest of intemperance.

The girl who passes down the street with a sly glance for every passer-by, has no thought of becoming a street walker, but she is treading on dangerous ground, and home soon becomes irksome and the habit of the street alluring.

The man who starts down town with a cheery "good morning" for every friend he meets, is sowing the seeds of cheerfulness, and the habit which follows soon becomes second nature and crowns his life like a benediction.

The woman who refrains from gossip, and has a good word for everybody, is planting the seeds of kindness, and the harvest garnered, is always manifold.

A crop of habits is as easy to cultivate as a crop of thistles. They require but little care, and the yield is always prolific. The man who swears is not always a bad man, but he is the slave of a bad habit, and his character is marred with the stamp of profanity.

Some people are so independent that they enjoy reputations for being what they are not. You rub up close against this kind of people occasionally, and find that they are diamonds in the rough. That's the difference between reputation and character. What they are and what you thought they were.

Our judgment is so largely based on reputation that we are sometimes startled to find that a bad character is shielded by a good reputation. The defaulter and embezzler may be a shining light in the church, and a social favorite, as is often the case, but his character is a victim of bad habits and a harvest of failure and disappointment is his destiny.

There is something about the word destiny that is a little gruesome to people who are untrued with the doctrine of fatalism, and many people are, who would not care to admit it.

When men and women drop out by the wayside, discouraged, claiming that fate is against them, they have taken a long stride toward the destiny of failure, and back of it is usually a character destitute of moral fibre and qualities of endurance.

The law determines destiny for criminals, but the most of us are not victims of crime, and the God who planned our pilgrimage through life, equipped us for the journey. He placed character above wealth and honor, with no favorites in the race. The cottage and the palace are not rivals in character building, and there is no fatalism about the destiny we reap.

Success is not measured by the coin of the realm, and financial bankruptcy represents but one class of failures. The building of character or neglect of the building, determines destiny, and responsibility is always individual.

Across the pathway of every life is the chasm which separates the here from the hereafter. When we come to the gateway which always swings out, but never in, the passport to final destiny will be character, the only jewel which stands the test of time.

The habits of thought and life are the builders of this choicest treasure, and we are the builders, as well as the custodian. Can we afford to neglect the sacred trust?

Side Talks With Girls.
If you want to land him be totally indifferent and let him see you with other young gentlemen as much as possible.

Don't let him know before you are married that you are a good cook or he will do it afterward.

Before you are married promise him that he can stay out late at night as often as he pleases and then the first time he does rap him on the bean with a rolling pin. He has no comeback then.

Don't let him see very many of your relatives before you have him hooked. You probably have a lot of funny ones. Everybody else has.

Tell him you hate the theater and don't care a rap for automobiles or fine clothes, then when you get him let him find out differently.

Miss Bessie Lake, student at the University of Wisconsin, is home for a short visit.

Mrs. A. L. Karney went to Janesville Friday to visit her son, Mead. She was joined at Orfordville by her daughter, Miss Karney, who accompanied her.

Don't Make a Mistake.
Earl Clark, Leader—Let no Wisconsin Republican be fooled into voting for Wilson in order to help defeat Roosevelt. That would be a mistake. It would be better for the third-corner to carry Wisconsin than for Wilson to carry the country. Wisconsin for Wilson would be 23 electoral votes against Taft. Taft may need them. The contest is between Taft and Wilson. Roosevelt is not in the race.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured
by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out of this tube restored to its normal condition hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Catarrh of the Eustachian tube that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

EXPECT LARGE CROWD TO HEAR LA FOLLETTE

WISCONSIN SENATOR TO DISCUSS ISSUES OF CAMPAIGN AT MYERS THEATRE THIS EVENING.

ARRIVES FROM BELOIT

Late This Afternoon and Will Be Entertained at Dinner by Victor P. Richardson—Four Addresses Scheduled Today.

Senator Robert M. La Follette will arrive in Janesville from Beloit late this afternoon and will speak at the Myers opera house at eight o'clock tonight on the issues of the present political campaign.

With four addresses scheduled for today Senator La Follette had a heavy

SENATOR LA FOLLETTE
Speaks on State and National Issues in Janesville Tonight.

program following a strenuous day yesterday and a long ride from Eau Claire to Milwaukee last night. He spoke at Chippewa Falls, Hudson and Eau Claire on Friday.

At nine o'clock this morning he arrived at Whitewater, where he made his first speech of the day. He left there shortly before noon and was taken by auto to Delavan where he was entertained at dinner and where he gave his second address.

The senator was scheduled to speak at Beloit at three o'clock, but as the train arrives from Delavan at 3:30 the meeting was delayed. There was a large crowd gathered at the Grand theatre filling every seat. Standing room was at a premium. Several Janesville men, including County Republican Chairman E. E. Starr, went to Beloit to attend the meeting and to accompany the senator to Janesville.

It was planned to come from Beloit to Janesville by automobile, arriving here shortly before seven o'clock if possible. The senator and several friends will be entertained at dinner at the home of Victor P. Richardson, 702 St. Lawrence avenue.

Preparations are being made to accommodate a great crowd at the opera house tonight. Mr. Starr said this morning that the committee anticipated a full house and that arrangements would be made to accommodate several hundred on the stage, if necessary. The Moose band will give a concert on the streets at 7:30 and will play before the address. Mr. Starr will introduce the senator.

Senator La Follette's last appearance in Janesville was on Aug. 15, 1906, in the campaign preceding the primary, and in which he spoke for the Levee Levee against James O. Davidson for the republican gubernatorial nomination. In view of the fact that he has not been here since, more than a half century is attached to his address tonight. His attitude on the presidential situation as well as on the mix-up in state politics explained from his own lips will also draw a large delegation of voters, both those who agree and disagree.

It is expected that there will be a fairly large number of ladies in the audience as it is known that Senator La Follette is supporting the suffrage cause. It is hardly probable, however, that he can more than touch upon this issue, considering the importance of the other issues to be considered.

Senator La Follette and party will leave here tonight on the eleven o'clock train for Madison where he will spend Sunday at his home.

JANESVILLE VICTOR BY SCORE OF 41; WHITEWATER 12

Local Players Made Three Touchdowns, and Held Opponents on One-Yard Line Just Before Whistle Blew.

At the end of the first half in the football game at the Fair Grounds between the Janesville high school team and the Whitewater high school eleven, the local players had secured a good lead over their opponents and chances of winning seemed to be in their favor. In the first quarter, Foster, right halfback for Janesville, made two touchdowns in quick succession, within ten minutes after the game had started, Janesville kicked goal both times, and the score at the end of the quarter was 14 to 0.

In the second quarter, Edler, left halfback for the local eleven, broke away from the interference, and went down the field sixty yards for a touchdown. Goal was kicked and at the end of the half, the score was 21 to 0 for Janesville. The line of the Bower City team was weak in defense, and Whitewater repeatedly made their downs. Just before the whistle blew for the end of the first half they had worked the ball to the Janesville one yard line, but the local players held them, and the end of the quarter was called.

The final score was: Janesville, 41; Whitewater, 12.

The Whitewater team arrived at 10:30 this morning and reported their selves in the best trim in which they are showing this afternoon. Falter is playing right halfback, Cummings having been shifted to right tackle. The locals are now heavier with the presence of Falter, but at that the Whitewater squad having the advantage over the local team by about 16 pounds per man. The locals are playing for blood, and the outcome was not known until the last whistle. The lineup was as follows:

The Land Seeker's Guide

This booklet gives information regarding lands open to those who wish to take up homesteads or to buy lands which are for sale very cheaply in a new country. The booklet which was prepared by one of the railroads, whose line is accessible to these lands, has been furnished the GAZETTE TRAVEL BUREAU for distribution and we believe contains something of interest to a great many people.

There is more truth than fiction to the statement that a good farm is the best investment a man can have and this book will give the prospective homesteader or purchaser information of farm lands in a country where they can be secured very cheaply and where indications are that they will steadily increase in value until the owner has a comfortable competence for a few years time spent on a claim or for a small investment.

Detailed information is given regarding the land. Such important features as nature of soil, climate, water supply are discussed fully and in fact all matters necessary to be considered by a person thinking of making purchase or of taking them up as a homestead proposition.

NOTICE OF GENERAL ELECTION

To the Electors of Rock County:

Office of County Clerk,
Janesville, Wisconsin, October 23, 1912.

Notice is hereby given that a general election is to be held in the several towns, wards, villages and election precincts in the county of Rock, on the 5th day of November, 1912, at which the officers named below are to be chosen. The names of the candidates for each office to be voted for, whose nominations have been certified to or filed in this office, are given under the title of the office and under the appropriate party of other designation, each in its proper column, together with the question submitted to a vote in the sample ballot below.

INFORMATION TO VOTERS

The following instructions are given for the information and guidance of voters: (a) A voter upon entering the polling place and giving his name and residence, will receive a ballot from the ballot clerk which must have endorsed thereon the names or initials of both ballot clerks, and no other ballot can be used. Upon receiving his ballot, the voter must retire alone to a booth or compartment and prepare the same for voting. A ballot clerk may inform the voter as to the proper manner of marking a ballot, but he must not advise or indicate in any manner whom to vote for.

(b) If a voter wishes to vote for all the candidates nominated by any party he shall make a cross (X) or other mark under the party designation printed at the top of the ballot in the circle made for that purpose. A ballot so marked and having no other mark will be counted for all the candidates of that party in the column underneath, unless the names of some of the candidates of the party have been erased or a name shall be written in or a cross mark be placed in the square at the right of the name or names of candidates in another column. If the voter does not wish to vote for all the candidates nominated by one party, he shall mark his ballot by making a cross or mark in the square at the right of the name of the candidate for whom he intends to vote or by inserting or writing in the name of the candidate.

(c) A voter may vote for an entire group of candidates for presidential electors by making a cross (X) or mark in the square at the right of the names of candidates for president and vice president whose names appear in the column above the names of the candidates for presidential electors in the group, he may erase the name of such candidate or candidates and the cross (X) or mark at the right of the names of the candidates for president and vice president shall count as a vote for each of the other candidates for presidential electors in such group whose names are not erased. If a voter wishes to vote for another person in place of a candidate whose name he has erased he may insert or write in the name of each such person in one of the spaces in the blank column at the right of the ticket. If a voter does not wish to vote for any candidates for president or vice president or for any presidential electors, whose names appear upon the ballot, he may insert or write in the names of the candidates for president and vice president, and presidential electors to a number equal to the number of electors to be selected, in the appropriate spaces in the blank column at the right of the ballot.

(d) A voter may vote upon a question submitted to a vote of the people by making a cross (X) or mark in the square at the right of the answer which he intends to give.

(e) The ballot should not be marked in any other manner. If the ballot be spoiled, it must be returned to the ballot clerk, who must issue another in its stead, but not more than three in all shall be issued to any one voter. Five minute's time is allowed in booth to mark ballot. Unofficial ballots or memorandum to assist voter in marking his ballot can be taken into the booth, and may be used to copy from. The ballot must not be shown so that any person can see how it has been marked by the voter.

(f) After it is marked it should be folded so that the inside cannot be seen, but so that the printed endorsements and signatures of the ballot clerks on the outside may be seen. Then the voter should pass out of the booth or compartment, give his name to the inspector in charge of the ballot box, hand him his ballot to be placed in the box, and pass out of the voting place.

(g) A voter, who declares to the presiding officer that he is unable to read, or that by reason of physical disability he is unable to mark his ballot, can have assistance of one or two election officers in marking same, to be chosen by the voter; and if he declares that he is totally blind, he may be assisted by any person chosen by him from among the legal voters of the county. The presiding officer may administer an oath in his discretion as to such person's disability.

(h) The following is a facsimile of the official ballot:

PROHIBITION GAINS NOTED IN DENMARK; TALK OF NEUTRALITY

Question of Country's Attitude in Event of War Between Germany and England Discussed.

Copenhagen, Oct. 26.—The prohibition movement has made such great strides in Denmark that during the coming elections the prohibitionists are to make strong effort to secure Parliamentary representation.

Hitherto the backers of the movement have been content to bring pressure upon the candidates of the regular parties in an effort to interest them in the propaganda, but now they feel they are influential enough to be directly represented in Parliament.

In every district where there is a possibility of polling a majority vote they will have candidate for the lower house. This will introduce a novel and interesting feature into the Parliamentary elections which have formerly been a straight fight between the government and the social democrats.

Denmark's neutrality in a possible war between Great Britain and Germany is being constantly discussed just now. There is no doubt that Denmark would be placed in a serious predicament, for at least one of the combatants would want to pass the waters of the Baltic or of the Danish waters. The German fleet has maneuvered in these waters frequently, and it is believed that the visit of the English and Russian fleets to Copenhagen lately was in answer to the German activities.

In this connection there have been rumors of an alliance between Denmark, England and Russia whereby Denmark will be expected in case of war to facilitate the movements of the English and Russian vessels through her waters.

Another version states that Denmark has entered into a secret treaty with Germany, whereby in case of war with England and Russia, German troops can be landed at convenient points in Denmark.

Both rumors are declared to be pure fiction. The present government, as proof of their desire to maintain a strictly neutral attitude, requested the English and Russian fleets to time their visits so that they would not be in Danish waters together. Officially the reason given for this request was that there was not room enough in the Copenhagen harbor for both fleets.

If it was only a question of sentiment there would be no doubt as to which side the Danes would favor, but during the past few years English influence has grown steadily in Denmark, whereas the Danes continue to resent the efforts of Germany to "Prussianize" the people of the former Danish Slesvig. But Denmark realizes that her future lies only in strict neutrality and she is determined to maintain it.

"Lucky pennies" for the assistance of the blind are the latest scheme evolved by Postmaster Holboell, who introduced the Christmas stamp idea for the support of consumption hospitals. He has designed a penny which will be given by babies who see the light for the first time to those who never see it.

This penny is to be coined by the million and sold to all the midwives in Denmark. The midwives then sell the penny to the parents of the newborn child who will pay it according to their means and inclinations. This money will then be given for the support and education of the blind. To interest the midwives in the matter, their insurance and old-age funds will be given a percentage of the sales.

Music from Greenland is shortly to be added to the delights of music lovers. A Danish composer has returned from a trip to Greenland with 150 original pieces of music which he secured from the natives by using a phonograph.

He declares that the musical sense of the natives is highly developed, and where they are the least influenced by cultivation the most typical tunes have been found. Several of the songs which he secured resemble the songs of the Canadian Indians and the Eskimos. He also discovered a striking resemblance in their native dances.

The project of improving the harbor of St. Thomas in the Danish West Indies by a state-subsidized company has been abandoned and the work will be done by private capital, a large share of which is likely to be furnished by America.

It was found that the government restrictions, hampered the company, and the Danish capitalists, headed by W. H. Madsen, have concluded to act as a private corporation.

Under this new plan American capitalists are taking an active interest in the formation of the company, and it is quite likely that the directorate will be largely in their hands.

Money rates are decidedly firm and bid fair to continue strong until the European situation crystallizes. Continued money contractions are nervous. Rumors regarding the embarrassment of one or two prominent institutions abroad have injected a feeling of uncertainty into the situation. New York bankers are taking advantage of Europe's urgent need to secure higher rates than would ordinarily obtain under present conditions in the United States. The fact that the United States Government is in a position to make available for commercial purposes the large volume of money now in the United States Treasury keeps rates within bounds and adds materially to the strength of our banking position.

securities has forced recessions in prices in our market. The demoralization of European Bourses has disclosed a greater speculative position than it was suspected existed. In fact, the monthly settlement on the Bourse in Paris is viewed with apprehension. For the time being, our market is under the influence of the foreign situation. Nevertheless, the United States is happily in a strong position financially and is fortunate in being able to readily absorb securities as offered. Further European selling in our market would no doubt drive prices lower. However, private advices regarding the situation are favorable. The settlements in both London and Paris this week, if favorable, will probably be the turning point. Out of the panic which has encompassed Europe, one fact stands out clearly. Prices for American securities are upon a solid basis.

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE

IN OUR IGNORANCE.

Said a woman of my acquaintance: "Last year my husband was ill, and now my daughter is threatened with tuberculosis. Living expenses are high, and my husband's salary is only $1,000 a year. Why should we be put into the world to suffer so? Life is really not worth the living sometimes."

This woman lived in her own house and had never lacked for the necessities of life.

Now—

"The problem of suffering, like that of sin, is an old one, but to think one is luckless beyond others is wrong. One is only to look about him to find many of his fellows worse off."

Privation? Suffering?

Why, this woman had never lived in a ramshackle tenement up rickety stairs. Her husband never had come home from the corner saloon with empty pocketbook and loaded with liquor to drive her with curses to the street.

Deprivation?

This complaining woman did not live in a two room and closet apartment, where you buy coal by the scuttleful, bread by the half loaf and ice by the pound delivery.

Poverty?

She had never haunted the butcher shops late on Saturday night, when the very poor do their pitiful shopping, to buy for almost nothing the remnant that will not keep until Monday—to purchase for a penny or two a soup bone or a neck of mutton.

No. She did not know.

She did not know that to find a quarter of a dollar for the slot of the gas meter may become a financial problem and that the monthly rent may become a real tragedy.

No.

She never had heard her children cry of cold in the winter nor moan of thirst in the summer time. She never had partly to starve a living child to pay the funeral expenses of a dead one.

Now—

I make no doubt my complainant scarcely would believe that thousands live the life I have hinted at, because "one half the world does not know how the other half lives."

That's the point—we complain out of ignorance.

We, all of us, are like the woman. We have our troubles and visitations, but it is only necessary that we should go along the street with wide open eyes to find dozens of people whose condition is infinitely worse than ours.

And Has Received His Honorable Discharge As First-Class Machinists' Mate—Will Probably Re-enlist.

After serving four years in the American navy and receiving his honorable discharge as first class machinists' mate, John Earl Brooks, a former Janesville boy, has returned to this city, and has been visiting for the past week at the home of his sister, Mrs. J. W. Boyes, 421 August street. Most of the four years he has been away from Janesville. Mr. Brooks has spent on the cruiser, Mary- land, and while on that ship was with the Pacific fleet which accompanied Secretary of State Knox on his visit to the South American republics. The Maryland afterwards went to Japan, when Mr. Knox went to the Sun- rise Kingdom as special ambas- sador from the United States to the funeral of Emperor Mutsuhito, but Mr. Brooks was not on the vessel at that time, having been transferred to the St. Louis, because of the near- ness of the expiration of his term of service. He received his discharge from the St. Louis on October 13, at Bremerton, Wash., and at the end of four months may re-enlist again. This he will probably do, as if he re-enlists the, he will receive pay for the four months he has been out of the ser- vice, and will go back with the high- est rating possible, that of chief machinists' mate.

In an interview with a reporter Mr. Brooks told an interesting story of his work on board ship, and some of the experiences he has met while at sea. "The work of a machinist in civil life and on board ship are vastly dif- ferent," said he. "On the ships the work is all engineering, and the machinists do not have much shop work, as you might call it. They have charge of all the engines, the boilers, small steam engines used for various purposes, all the floors and the steam launches that are used in going from the ship to land.

"When you first start in, the work is pretty hard. It is entirely different from what you are accustomed to; everything is new to you; and you've got everything to learn. It requires a lot of study to make good, too. On the first cruise a man sees a lot of things that seem strange and novel to him, but after that you become ac- customed to many of the things that seemed unusual.

"When I left here, I went to Brook- lyn and was on the 'Hancock' for about three months. From New York I went on to 'Prairie' to Colon, and across the Isthmus by train to Pana- ma, where I caught the Maryland. From Panama the whole Pacific fleet of eight cruisers went down to Val- paraiso, Chile, and then worked back to Panama, stopping at most all of the countries. In all we spent about eight months on the cruise.

A visit to a cannibal island in the Pacific Ocean was also one of Mr. Brooks' experiences, and he has given a good description of what he saw there.

"Yes, I went ashore on a cannibal island," said Mr. Brooks. "It was one of a small group in the Pacific Ocean north of the Admiralty Islands near Australia. We were cruising there and I went ashore with the party. The cannibals I saw there were the 'frizzle-headed' savages, with kinky hair that was never cut and stuck out on their heads like a great big bush. These savages cut slits in their ears and stuck bones in them for ornaments, until the ears hang down almost to the jaw. They also slit the cartilage of the nose and stick bones and sticks in it. I never saw anything quite so ugly before.

"The only white man there was a German, who had a sugar plantation worked by savages who had brought to a half-civilized state. The place was cultivated as a sugar plan- tation, and outside of that the only reason I could see for his staying there, was that he might have been holding the island as a German pos- session. Just a couple of days before we got there, the cannibals had got a couple of his laborers and had a big feast, so they were not very hungry when we arrived, but the party that went ashore was well armed.

"The German's place was located on a small island just off the main island, and most of the trees had been cut down. The laborers had to go armed to their work, and the natives were so afraid of firearms that they would leave the German's labors alone, unless one of them happened to get off away from the others. Twice a year a German ship comes there to trade, but that is about the only boat that stops there.

"The way the cannibals caught fish was interesting. They take a piece of reed, or a kind of grass that grows there, and make a noose of it. This they let down into the water and wait until the fish puts his head through the noose, then pull it in. The water around the island, which is of a coral formation, is clear as crystal and the natives can see the fish easily.

"The natives do not know what money means, and all their trading with foreigners is done by exchange of spears, fancy beads and baskets covered with berries for tobacco, knives and other trinkets that the traders bring. Neither are the can- nibals bothered with clothes, but they are a fine-built race of men, tall, straight and muscular. The features are something like those of the American Indian, but the skin is darker, although not as dark as that of the negro.

"For boats they make a canoe, and extend across it a couple of beams, which extend out to one side of the craft. These beams they lace to a limb or a small tree and with a sail on their boat, sail about to the other islands of the group. The cloth for the sail is generally the cloth they get from the traders, although they make a tappa cloth from the fuzzy hair-like stuff around the shells of coconuts. This tappa cloth they color with dyes they make from berries or other coloring matters, and they weave it into designs like those used by the Indians on blankets.

"The houses are mostly huts, although among the chiefs the houses have three sides. They put up limbs of trees to form the lean-to, cover the framework with grasses and leaves, and put mud over that. They cook most of their food, the birds and animals they catch, by taking a pile of stones or a big flat stone, which they heat until red-hot. When the stone is red-hot, they place the food on that and leave it until it is cold. I had supposed that these savages ate raw meat, but they generally cook it.

"Life on a Battleship. "Life on shipboard at times gets a little monotonous, but the amuse- ments are pretty good. The men play cards, have boxing and wrest- ling matches—and they have some good sport too—and the ship carries a full motion picture outfit. Then we have a band that gives concerts twice a day; at noon, just after lunch, and after dinner for two or three hours. Of course we have dances among ourselves. In addi- tion there is a good library on board ship.

"There is one other amusement we have; that is the greatest of all. The old-time sailors had a supersti- tion that King Neptune's domain was under the sea at the equator, and whenever a ship crossed the equator there was a great pageant to Nep- tune, in order that he might not be- come angered and cause the ship to sink. That custom has survived to this day, although of course it is known that Neptune is only a myth, but when one of the ships crosses the equator, they celebrate and every- one takes part in the celebration. Anyone who has never been across the equator has to be initiated.

"The initiation is pretty rough, and it is talked of among the sailors for a month or so before they cross the meridian line, so that those who have never been initiated are pretty scared when the time comes.

"The affair is handled entirely by the men. Those who have been across before take charge and make up costumes to represent King Nep- tune and the members of his court.

JOHN EARL BROOKS
of this city, who recently returned after spending four years in the Navy.

The day the ship crosses the line, it is turned over to King Neptune and his court and officers and men go through the ceremony alike. After you have crossed once the captain of the ship gives you a certificate telling when you crossed, but if you have crossed once and have no proof of it, you have to go through the initiation again. The last time we crossed the equator there were three hundred men to initiate.

"Messages supposed to come from King Neptune are read, and charges of acts against the king are brought against those who have never crossed and they are given a mock court martial. If the dentist thinks you have a tooth that needs pulling, he gives you an antidote for the pain, generally a mixture of vinegar, grog or something like that. The doctor gives you medicine that is similar with perhaps a few more ingredients—anything to make the dose as bad as it can, and leave the taste in your mouth.

"The last thing is the bath. The length of the time of the bath and the number of duckings you re- ceive depends on the charges against you. There are generally about ten men in a tank of salt water up to the armpits, and you get a good ducking. When you start out you go up a ladder charged with electricity and fall back into the tank again. Sometimes to have fun, they tell one of the can- nibals they will let him go if he will sing a solo, dance a jig or some other stunt, and get him up on a platform to do it. After he has done his stunt, they tell him he did it so badly, he will have to take his initiation for punishment, anyway.

"Twice our ship (the Maryland) won the gunnery trophy for the highest score at target practice, in 1908 and 1910. Last year we won the engineering trophy for being the most proficient in the navy, in economy in the use of coal, and for repairs.

"Last summer we made a trip along the Pacific coast and visited at Port- land at the Rose Carnival. Our ship was the biggest ship that had ever passed up the Columbia river. The cruiser drew twenty-eight feet of water, and the people of Portland were proud because a ship drawing that much water had never come up there before. We demonstrated that it could be done. The scenery along the Columbia and Willamette rivers up to Portland was beautiful, and the trip was a fine one. We were in Tacoma on the Fourth of July and went to the celebration there. On these trips we were given all shore liberties, that is, with the exception of some of the men who were denied shore leave as a punishment. "At Panama, a year ago, the Pana- ma Canal Commission gave us free use of the railroad from Panama to Colon, and we inspected the whole canal. I visited the Gatun Locks and the Gatun Dam. The locks were nearly finished when I was there.

"We were in Honolulu when they opened Pearl Harbor. The fleet under Admiral Thomas went there, and they were the first ships to enter the har- bor after the dredging was finished. When the harbor is all completed Honolulu will be made a base for naval supplies. We had a big time at Honolulu. All kinds of salutes were fired when we entered the har- bor, and the ships were fixed out in full dress. Receptions were held aboard the ships, and the old queen of the Hawaiian Islands entertained at her mansion ashore.

Bell Solicitors Again Employing Unfair Methods

They've Always Got a "Story." This One the Most Unlikely of All.

FOR some little time the valiant solicitors of the Bell Telephone Company, who always have just exactly "five orders" in their pocket and must hurry and turn them in, have been spreading among subscribers of the Rock County System a report that runs something like this: "There will be no Automatic Telephone System in Janesville. There will be no new Central Energy System. There will be no new Rock County Telephone Building. All this is a bluff that the Rock County System has been foist- ing on the public for some time. They haven't got money enough to do any of these things. They're hard up." And such other "bosh" of like nature.

Where do these keen five order" a day salesmen, of the Bell people, get posses- sion of this information they use? Do they know what they are talking about or are they merely "talking" under instruction? Strange, but we do not re- member having at any time dispensed, to any of the Bell people, information regarding the affairs of this company. If the matter were inquired into close- ly, we wonder what would be the report regarding the financial earnings of the local Bell exchange. How long would it be in existence if it had to stand on its own feet, without a bolster from Wall street. Their report for the year ending June 30, 1912, filed with the Railroad Rate Commission at Madison, shows the net deficit of their Janesville exchange was $7558.59. We wonder if they get pay for all their telephones.

From the time of our entrance into this field we have never felt the necessity of sending our men to unfairly get people to subscribe to our system at the rate of "five a day." We reduced the telephone rate from $3 to $1 a month for residence phones and are responsible for increasing the number of telephones in Janesville from 300 to over 4000.

Our list is increasing daily. In a few days we'll print a list of names and ad- dresses of our actual increase in the last few months. Not merely a statement but an actual list. And, furthermore, we are going to rebuild our plant and install a system that will be as far superior to the system of our competitor as day is superior to night.

Tells About the

$10,000 Beauty

with the

Adam Forepaugh Shows.

In the winter of eighteen hundred and eighty-eight, Adam Forepaugh had European agents all over Europe looking for anything that would be a feature for the show the coming season of eighty-nine, and although they spent thousands of dollars looking for something in the way of a novelty that would not only draw the mass of the people, but be feature well worth looking at, they failed to find anything that they thought was worth bringing to this country.

For several years a newspaper man whose home was in Norwich, Connecticut, had been press agent with the show. His name was Charles H. Day, and he was considered one of the best men in the business. Charles, as he was familiarly known with the show, got an idea one day that to advertise for the handsomest woman in the world, whose salary he $10,000 for the season would certainly be a drawing card.

He talked this over with Mr. Forepaugh, but it was some days before Mr. Day could make Mr. Forepaugh think that that was the thing to do. But they finally advertised in the Philadelphia and New York papers, saying that Adam Forepaugh would give $10,000 for the coming season for the handsomest woman in the world to travel with his show, and he would have a committee of three men at his main office in Chestnut street, Philadelphia, who would make the final decision and pick out the woman whom they deemed would fill the place.

They wanted all those who could to make application in person and those that could not to write letters and send their photographs. Letters and photographs came by the thousands, not only from the United States, but from all over Europe. Finally a young lady by the name of Louise Montague was selected as the one.

Louise Montague has been in theatrical business for a few years and was not only handsome in face and figure, but was one of the brightest and smartest women that I ever knew. Her duties consisted of riding in the parade and sitting on a platform built for her in the menagerie.

She always had 25 of the best reserved seats at her disposal in the big show where she entertained her friends and the press. You would many times hear old ladies say that if Mary or if Jane Se-and-so had the fine clothes that this woman had, they would be just as good looking as she was, but in the whole season you never heard a newspaper man say so. And in her case the old adage held true that "handsome is as handsome does."

The press all over the country was anxious to interview her and she was certainly an entertainer and knew how. When it would come close to time for the big show to start the newspaper men with their families would try to get away from her and say, "we will see you later." Louise would always say to them, "Now you had animal books, brick popcorn and some nice reserved seats for you." They would thank her and say, "We have plenty of reserved seats," and in answer Louise would say, "you haven't any like mine." She would keep them with her and take them in the big show.

She would see that the children all had animal books, brick popcorn and everything of that kind that the children like and which naturally went with the circus and after the performance was over she would always have a little one in her arms and walk clear—XZ@ lb&—XZ@ lb&—XZ@ lb&—XZ@ lb&—out to the main street with them and all the time she would be telling them what a beautiful town Janesville was or Madison or La Crosse or what ever town they might be showing in.

She proved to be the greatest card that the show had ever seen and Mr. Forepaugh closed the season, which was always known as the beauty season, with three quarters of a million to the good after all expenses were paid. Louise stayed with the show a part of the next season and then concluded to go to Europe to study the stage. This she did and later came back to this country and only a short time after married a prominent lawyer in New York, where they made their home for several years.

About five or six years ago I was in Chicago and stopped at the Windsor Clifton hotel where a friend of mine by the name of George Cummings was manager. I had no more than registered till George said to me, "Dave, who do you think called in the hotel a few days ago and told me that if you ever came to the city, she wanted you to be sure and see her?"

He tried to make me guess who it was, but as I could not he said to me, "It is your old friend Louise Montague, the 'show' beauty." She and her husband had moved to Chicago about a year before and she knew that Mr. Cummings and I were friends. I did not have time to go and visit her at that time and it was only a little later till she was taken sick with pneumonia and died. She had one of the brightest, cheeriest natures that I ever knew and as the old saying goes she wore a "smile that never came off."

Louise was always as kind to the working people around the show as she was to the proprietor or the officers. Hundreds of circus people all over the country mourned her sudden death.

On May fourth, eighteen hundred and seventy-nine, the Burr Robbins show opened the season in Janesville on a Saturday. A light drizzling rain fell all day, but in spite of this the show did a big business.

For weeks before the regular route of the show had been made out, an ambitious citizen of Old Milton had tried hard at different times to have Col. Robbins show there on the following Monday. Mr. Robbins finally consented and the show went to Old Milton from Janesville. This man's name was Eliza Goodrich. Mr. Goodrich, had lived there nearly all his life and was ambitious to have a circus and menagerie come to Milton.

He furnished the show ground, the feed for all the stock and I think, if my memory serves me right, he fed the people there at his hotel on the corner. And while the receipts were not the largest of the season, our expenses were very light and we pulled out of Milton Thursday morning for Whitewater with about $950 to the good.

Although Mr. Goodrich made but little or nothing out of the show, he had realized his ambition of bringing a circus and menagerie to Milton.

That season the show closed with about $90,000 to the good and as we were out only about 140 days, we will readily see that Milton held its average with the balance of the towns for the season. So Burr Robbins never regretted that he showed in Milton.

To me these are pleasant memories of the past and I hope they may interest the reader.

SUGGEST PERMANENT LOOK-OUT SHIP FOR GUARDING SHIPPING

British Board of Trade Proposes To Station One in Track of Atlantic Travel to Warn Liners.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

London, Oct. 26.—A permanent iceberg lookout ship in mid-Atlantic is suggested by the British Board of Trade as a sequel to the report of Lord Mersey on the Titanic disaster.

At present the plan is being considered by the advisory committee of the Board of Trade. If the proposals are carried out, the vessel will be stationed in the track of Atlantic travel and she will cruise along the boundaries of the ice region. She will then be in a position to warn the hurrying liners by her powerful wireless equipment of the exact position of the various ice fields. The proposed ship will also send warning of drifting icebergs and any derelicts which she may encounter.

According to reports made to the advisory committee, the most suitable iceberg ship would be about of 2,000 tons displacement; 350 feet long and 32 feet broad, with a draught of 12 feet 6 inches. She would have a speed of 10 knots and consume 12 tons of coal every 24 hours. Her wireless telegraph equipment would be of the most powerful type and widest range.

The Board of Trade officials express the belief that the stationing of such a ship in mid-ocean would add immeasurably to the safety of ocean travelling.

American-bred race horses have won more events this year than ever before on the English turf. Among them the offspring of James R. Keane's once famous sprinter Voleur figure the most frequently, two of his sons, Election and Selectman, having upset theorists on breeding by winning long distance races.

Golden Rod and Coney Island, two English-bred grandsons of J. B. Hagen's Emperor of Norfolk, also proved themselves good winners this season. August Belmont's Tracery has won $48,000 and H. B. Duryea's Sweeper II, $30,000 during the year. Duryea has also won as much money in France with Shannon, an American-bred colt sired by the brilliant race horse Irish Lad out of Census by Ethelbert.

The greatest winner of the season is not American-bred, but this horse Prince Palmire has been ridden in all of his stake races by the American jockey, Frank O'Neill, who comes from Paris each time the horse races.

Danny Maher, who has again taken his old place as head of the list of winning jockeys, has signed a renewal of his contract for first call on his services with Lord Rosebery. Maher has refused offers of second and third call on his services, and when he is not required to ride for Lord Rosebery, he will be a free lance.

The world's consumption of cotton is increasing rapidly, according to the annual statistics of cotton stocks and consumption issued by the International Federation of Master Cotton Spinners. The figures rose from 11,599,401 bales in 1910-11 to 11,957,330 in 1911-12. At the same time spinners' stocks of American cotton have increased by nearly a million bales.

The report points out that as the world's spindles have only increased in this time from 127,278,752 to 137,693,103, it is clear that the season just ended has been extraordinarily free from "short time" and labor disputes involving long and expensive stoppages.

Depending upon reports of a bumper cotton crop in the United States, the Lancashire spinners are looking forward to a season of unprecedented prosperity.

Lord Denman, the Governor-General of Australia, has been practically expelled from Sydney by the authorities of New South Wales, and the matter has caused some hard things to be said of the Australian state in England.

Personally Lord Denman had had nothing to do with the dispute which has caused his eviction from the official residence, and he is the victim of a quarrel between the State and Federal ministers.

The Commonwealth wanted to start a postal savings bank, but as this would have competed with the existing State bank, the state authorities opposed the idea bitterly.

To bring pressure to bear on the Federal authorities a means was found in the threat to resume possession of Government House, the residence of the Governor-General, which is State property. The excuse was given that the grounds were needed for a park and the house for a museum. At any rate the Governor-General was compelled to seek new quarters in Melbourne, and on his departure the Mayor of Sydney presented him with an address expressing the regret and indignation of the citizens at the circumstances of his departure.

The Federation of the British West Indian colonies is probably to be brought before the British government for approval very shortly.

The proposed federation has been much discussed since the Colonial Office granted permission for the trade agreement between Canada and the West Indian colonies. C. Gidson Murray, administrator of St. Vincent, lately prepared a scheme for the federation, but this proved unacceptable to the West Indies because it excluded from the plan Jamaica, the Bahamas and British Honduras.

The influence of the Colonial Office will carry great weight if it inclines to aid the proposed federation, for it controls all of the colonies except Barbados, which has a constitution which gives it a more nearly responsible government than any other colony outside of the Dominions.

One of the initial difficulties to be overcome in the efforts at federation will be concerned with the maintenance of this constitution. It has been proposed to overcome this difficulty by making Barbados the seat of the new Federal government.

It is claimed that federation would greatly reduce the cost of administration, which is now disproportionately high; that it would lead to the establishment of a common treasury, thereby enhancing the credit of the colonies; that it would result in the abolition of the present customs duties which the islands have raised against each other, and that it would gradually establish uniform laws in place of the present tangled skein of imperial laws and orders in council.

TO PURCHASE SECOND MOTOR DRIVEN TRUCK

Beloit Common Council Authorizes Committee to Negotiate for Purchasing—First Gives Satisfaction.

Beloit is to have another auto fire truck. At a meeting of the common council the fire committee was authorized to negotiate for the purchase of such a truck. The authorization followed a communication from the fire committee recommending that another truck be bought rather than that a horse be secured to take the place of the one that recently died.

The committee's report pointed out that the truck now owned by the city has been used in all kinds of weather and all kinds of streets and has proved satisfactory. Furthermore, it was urged that the cost of keeping two horses would pay the interest on a new truck and maintain it. It was shown that in addition to the horse that has just died another animal would mean the purchase of two more horses in the near future.

The first auto truck has now been in use about seven months. It has demonstrated that it can be depended upon in virtually every case, under all circumstances and conditions, both of the weather and of the streets. Not only that, but it has demonstrated that it is less costly to maintain than the horse-drawn apparatus.

There is no question whatever about the better service rendered by the fire truck. Off in a second after the alarm rings in, the truck is at its destination blocks away while horses would be getting out of the station. The presence of the truck gives everybody a feeling of greater security. It ought to be reduced insurance rates, whether it does or not. Perhaps at least it prevents their going higher.—Beloit News.

HAVE NEW ASSESSMENT SYSTEM IN HOUSTON.

The tax commissioner of Houston, J. J. Pastoriza, has adopted for use in that city the Somers system of assessing property, combining with it a system of taxation which he describes as follows:

All land is assessed equally under the Somers system, and all such values are taxed 70 cents on the dollar. All buildings are taxed at 25 cents on the dollar. Money is not taxed at all; personal property, household goods, etc., are totally exempt from taxation. The same tax is placed upon that part of public streets which is used by public service corporations as is applied to other land. Taxation on this street space adds $1,799,990 to Houston's tax rates.

Mr. Pastoriza states that his aim was to equalize assessed values and so apply taxation as to encourage the erection of new buildings, the circulation of money and the depositing of it in the local banks; and that a building boom followed the placing of such a low tax upon buildings, and the bank deposits in the city have greatly increased since the tax upon them was removed.—Municipal Journal.

FIND AUTOMOBILE TRAVEL GREATER THAN BY WAGON

In one place in DeKalb county it was determined by actual count that sixty-two per cent of the road traffic was automobiles and at other places as much as fifty-four per cent. With such an auto traffic as this and constantly increasing in volume and with auto trucks hauling ten to twelve tons at a single load, it will become more and more a question how to make roads that will stand the wear and not be too expensive to construct. Dirt roads will not depend upon and so the question of permanent roads that can be used at all seasons of the year is pressing to the front. Where such roads have been constructed even at what seemed at almost a prohibitory expense, the ones who are savored as to be near them would not do without them and in most places preparations are made to build more. Soon the town or community that does not have some permanent road, will be out of date.—Sterling (Ill.) Gazette.

CITY PLANS TO DISTILL OCEAN WATER IN VOLCANO

Santa Monica, Cal.—Santa Monica is considering a unique plan for solving the serious water problem which it faces. The supply is already inadequate, and an application for a part of the Owens river from Los Angeles has not been granted. Now it is proposed to distill ocean water for domestic purposes, and the municipality may purchase the Burning mountain, several miles up the coast in the Santa Monica range, for use as a heating plant. It is believed the sea water could be carried through a "U" pipe deep to the hot interior of the smoking hill and distilled at slight cost. Power might be produced, some engineers think that would enable the municipality to maintain an electric lighting plant.

ENGAGE LANDSCAPE ARTIST TO PLAN PARK SYSTEM

The city park board recently engaged Charles H. Ramsdell, of Minneapolis, a landscape designer of high repute, to inspect the various parks of Aberdeen and submit plans for their improvement, in accordance with the park board's plans for a systematic development of the park system of Aberdeen.

The board has received the designer's recommendations, which are tentative, and go into a whole subject of park improvement in Aberdeen very thoroughly. The park board will ask the city commissioners for an appropriation of $15,000 for the coming year, to carry out the plans as outlined by Mr. Ramsdell.—Aberdeen News.

WILL TEST WELLS FOR WATER PLANT

The board of public works was authorized to institute a test of the four wells which have been completed in connection with the new well system to ascertain whether they are sufficient distance apart, at a meeting of the special water committee of the city council held at the city hall this morning.

They were also authorized and instructed to have the plans and specifications changed so that the wells will be deeper than in the present plans.—La Crosse Tribune.

WILL VOTE SECOND TIME ON ISSUING CITY BONDS

Because an insignificant number of voters voted at the special city election on April 16, this year, when a bond issue of $75,000 was voted to erect a city hall, jail and fire hall, the city has been unable to sell the bonds, and so on Tuesday, November 5, the electors of Aberdeen will be offered the opportunity of voting for a new bond issue of $100,000 for the same purpose.—Aberdeen News.

SATURDAY NIGHT MARKET PROBABLE IN MILWAUKEE

A Saturday night public market will be opened in Milwaukee, for the convenience of the householders for this undertaking. City Solicitor Janson is investigating. He believes it would be a success. Farmers, he said, could bring in their supplies Saturday afternoon and the evening market would enable householders to provide themselves with table necessities until Monday in a manner more convenient than is possible under existing conditions.

TO COMPEL DRUNKARDS TO SEE THEMSELVES

Baltimore, Md.—So drunkards and street lighters can "see themselves as others see them," a large mirror will be placed in the courtroom of the southwestern police station. This plan will be inaugurated by Justice Ulrich. A man was brought in Tuesday and he looked badly. The magistrate thought his image in a mirror would go far to reform him.

NEENAH PUBLIC SCHOOLS PROVIDE TRAINED NURSE

Neenah, Wis.—The school board will request the city council to provide a trained nurse to look after the health of the children of the public schools. The council will hold a special session to take action.

Let Contract for Filter Plant.

Appleton, Wis.—At the recent session of the commission the contract for the new filter plant for the Appleton water works system was awarded to the Jewell Water Improvement company of Chicago, the contract price being $45,809.

New System Is Success.

Superior, Wis.—Nearly 800 students are enrolled in the night vocational schools established here in connection with the public school system. The installation of the night system has been such a success that it has been necessary to turn students away in some departments because of the lack of facilities.

Sewage Plant Overtaxed.

The old sewage plant at Madison is being greatly overtaxed. "We are pumping 1,000,000 gallons more a day than last year," said City Engineer Parker recently.

The new plant will not be ready until in the fall of 1913 or in the spring of 1914.

To Install Smoke Consumer.

The Rockford board of education voted to allow the Rockford Smoke Prevention Company to install a smoke consumer in the Garrison school. If the appliance overcomes the smoke evil others will be installed.

To Install Corinthian Lights.

The work of boring the holes for the posts of the Corinthian lights, which are to be erected on the west side of Main street between Third and Fourth street has been started.—Hastings Times.

LA PRAIRIE

La Prairie, Oct. 25.—W. H. Howard and Ralph Howard went to St. Paul Monday evening returning home Wednesday morning with two carloads of cattle and one of sheep. George Conway has been absent from high school the past week on account of illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Landers have moved to Janesville.

WALK KETCHES.

WHY WHO'S WHO.

(By Howard L. Rann.)

It is a great handicap in the race of life to be born without a nickname or a name which can be picked by the vulgar. Some names are picked more than others, as for example our Theodore, who is called everything from "Dosenfolt" to the czar of Russia.

Wilson, whose parents were serious people and did not propose to have his front name jiggled with by posterity. There are several ways of pronouncing this name, the most popular of which is "Woodruff."

There has been only one public attempt to nickname Governor Wilson, and that was the other day, when an enthusiastic listener called him "Woody." For this offense he was promptly shut upon by the grand jury.

Some people pronounce the final syllable of the governor's first name with an "o," as in "row," while others use the "o" as in "row." If everybody in this country who has tried to pronounce this name, without contracting lock jaw, should vote for the governor next month, Theodore and William will look like the last pallid remains of a church supper.

Woodrow (pronounce it as you darn please) is a thoughtful man and took good care to be born in Virginia where produces presidents and lost tobacco with vigor and intelligence. For several years his principal industry was graduating from college. Every once in a while he would think of some college which he had overlooked, and then go out and graduate from it while it was fresh in his mind. In this way he accumulated a large collection of Latin degrees, which he would now be willing to trade for a good horse and buggy.

When he ran out of colleges, Woodrow dashed off an American history which a vindictive opposition is now using as a campaign document. In 1910 the people of New Jersey decided that Woodrow had had enough schooling, so they made him governor. Woodrow made a very tactful governor, and discouraged the malefactors of great wealth to such an extent that they began to call him "professor."

Woodrow has never sought office with promises of cash, but relies wholly upon a direct flow of pure English and a square jaw. He would never be mistaken for a matinee idol, but his character, his moderation and his kindness are good to look upon.

There Is No Black Magic in the Fact That Hoosier Kitchen Cabinets Save Miles of Steps For Tired Feet.

The magic of the Hoosier Kitchen Cabinet is all in its compactness.

The saving in actual money is almost as surprising as the saving the Hoosier Cabinet makes in time and steps.

Any woman will recall the number of times during even the past year when she has misplaced articles in her kitchen—when bags of crackers have softened, or parcels of spices have lost strength while overlooked.

Such accidents do not happen with the Hoosier Cabinet. Nothing can get out of your sight. There is a glass jar for every kind of spice; metal box for crackers. Flour does not mould. Tea and coffee retain their flavor.

Furthermore, the daily reminder is so handy that one does not forget to order groceries. Company never finds the larder empty. A guest never finds one perplexed over a meal.

These conveniences are purely the result of the simplicity of the Hoosier Kitchen Cabinet.

Any woman appreciates every one of these vital savings in her kitchen. She will be still more impressed at their small cost.

Call and see the Hoosier and have its workings explained. Notice our display window this week.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

ARE YOU ACCURATELY DRESSED?

ARE YOU accurately dressed?

There is a young girl who passes my study window every morning on her way to work whom it is always a pleasure to look upon. At first I thought that she was exceptionally well dressed, but soon I realized that there was nothing particularly expensive or in any way remarkable about her clothes. The charm was simply the way she put them on. In other words she was the most accurately dressed person I ever saw.

What does that mean?

It means several things.

It means that her neckwear and her belt are always perfectly neat and properly adjusted.

It means that her hair is always accurately dressed. And by accurately I do not mean that it is either spanked down or arranged in one of those just-so coiffures that look as if they had been freshly produced from a handbox. On the contrary, this girl wears her hair in a soft, loose coil and has several natural curls about her ears. What I mean by accurately is that it is always arranged just as it is meant to be, with no locks escaping that are not meant to escape, and no ugly roughness spoiling the symmetry of the coil.

It means that her hat is always on at the psychologically correct angle.

It means that her shoes are never run down at the heels and are properly polished.

It means that she never appears in the half soiled white gloves that even well dressed women allow themselves.

It means that her skirt always hangs well.

It means that her gowns, no matter how simple and inexpensive, are always fresh and spotless.

It means that she always wears clothes that are appropriate for the street, never goes in for freaky fashions and never decorates the front of her dress with a lot of chains and beads and other fussy and literary duds.

A man writer who was trying to tell why a certain woman appeared much better dressed than her neighbors put it this way, "It wasn't that her clothes were so wonderful, it was simply that there were never any loose ends about her."

Undoubtedly he was describing the same thing I am trying to convey when I speak of this girl's being accurately dressed.

And undoubtedly that is a charm about a woman who deserves this description which is keenly felt by both sexes.

And mind you, it is not a God-given charm, but one which can be acquired by anyone.

Are there any loose ends about you?

Are you accurately dressed?

Suppose you ask this question of your mirror every day until you finally get the right answer.

themselves into strong and healthy human beings.

That's why much of the world's work is carried on in such a twiddling way.

Without health, without good habits, without the really big things, we can't achieve the really big things.

Either we play out before our work is accomplished, or we are laid low by disease, or we struggle along with handicapped energy, or we just drift lazily.

Anyone who has ever known real health and strength and cleanliness, will never forfeit these things for an enervating comfort—a comfort which comes last and which, at its best, never equals that fine, free feeling which comes of a well-disciplined body, or that blessed restfulness which ensues after healthful physical exertion.

Remember: A whole lot of bad health comes from sheer laziness.

The KITCHEN CABINET

LIFE is a choice, every day to choose between good and evil. Every choice for good leads on to true victory, and every choice for evil weakens and debases.

SOME PLAIN DISHES.

Bread pudding is such an ordinary common pudding that many feel that it is too common to enjoy. Did you ever make one like this? Spread slices of bread with butter, lay in a baking dish, add a handful of raisins, and pour over sufficient milk to cover; allow the bread to soak in the milk, letting the dish stand where it will keep warm. After an hour or two pour over a custard such as you use for a cup custard pie. Bake until firm.

Another Bread Pudding.—Take two cups of bread crumbs, a cup of sugar, a cup of molasses, half a cup of raisins, a dash of cinnamon and two cups of sweet milk. Bake half an hour, stirring often, then add four cups of milk and bake two hours longer. Serve hot or cold.

Ginger Bread.—Melt a half cup of shortening, add it with a cup of molasses and sugar and one cup of sugar to a beaten egg; add a teaspoonful of cinnamon, a tablespoonful of ginger and three cups of flour. Mix well and add just at the last, two level teaspoonfuls of soda dissolved in a cup of boiling water. Stir in quickly and bake in a well greased dripping pan. If lard or fryings are used for shortening, add salt to make it palatable. Bake about forty minutes.

Surprise.—Cut a half loaf into slices or use left-over bread, butter and lay into a deep pie plate. Cut up good baking apples, putting a layer of apples on the bottom of the pan, then sugar sufficient to sweeten, then the bread; continue until the dish is full. Bake until soft, turn out in a dish and serve.

Mashed Potato Doughnuts.—Take two tablespoonfuls of butter, a half cup of hot mashed potatoes, one and a half cups of sugar, one cup of sweet milk, two eggs well beaten, four eggs with a little salt and nutmeg and two teaspoonfuls of baking powder.

These doughnuts are light, moist and delicious.

Old English Mincemeat.

Two pounds beef suet chopped very fine.

Two pounds firm apples, pared and cored.

Three pounds currants, washed, picked and dried.

Two pounds raisins free from seeds.

One pound blanched almonds and a few bitter almonds.

Mince separately and add one pound citron and orange peel mixed.

One-half ounce cinnamon.

One lemon whole and rind of three.

One-half ounce salt.

One-half ounce allspice.

Three-fourths pound sugar.

One pound Sultan raisins.

One glass claret and one glass sherry (three cups port wine will do.)

Mix thoroughly.

This may be put in a crock and will be ready for pies at any time. Mrs. J. S.

SNAPSHOTS BY BARBARA BOYD

A Looker-on in a Railway Station

A MAN dashed up the steps of a railway station, and sprinted through the train-shed for a distant gate. Five people unobtrusively stepped in his path, and were nearly knocked over or grazed as he managed to turn aside in time. Why does everybody seem to get in the way of a person running for a train? He reached the gate, just as it was slammed in his face by a gatekeeper whose sole joy in life seemed to be in seeing people miss trains. Possibly it was his only excitement in a monotonous existence, and so he should not be blamed too much.

The man who had missed his train said things to the gatekeeper, took out his watch and glared at it, walked undecidedly back and forth for a minute or two, then consoled himself with a newspaper and took a seat with others waiting for trains.

Suddenly without perceptible pause, a crowd flowed into the station by all its avenues of approach. There was chatter and confusion and hurrying and scurrying; and then as quickly as it came, it melted away, and the sound of trains rumbling off in the distance could be heard.

At the door of the woman's waiting room paused before the mirror to take a good view of herself. She turned and twisted and looked to her satisfaction or dissatisfaction, and then passed on. As she came out she paused again and took another good view. What did she suppose had happened to change her appearance in the few minutes she had waited or had greeted friends?

And in this waiting room there were, rather oddly, just two classes of women, the quite old and the quite young. There seemed for the time being, none between. The women waiting here were either well past middle life or else scarcely twenty.

And, since no one was about whom they knew, and they did not need to keep up appearances, they were, as it were, off guard. Their real selves looked forth from every countenance. And what a study and what a contrast these faces of old and young were! For, almost without exception, the faces of the elderly were sad and careworn, or else discontented or peevish. Scarcely a countenance expressed real contentment and satisfaction in life. It would have been difficult to find among them a face that spoke of genuine happiness, that said life had yielded all that was desired.

On the other hand, the faces of the young girls were joyous and care-free. Nearly all were smiling or laughing. They looked happy and hopeful. To them life seemed as if it would bring all they wished.

Yet, when they came to old age will they, too, be as these other women? Must the journey from youth to age inevitably line the face with marks of care or sorrow or worry or ill-nature or discontent? Surely it is not intended to be so. When do we miss the turning and get on the wrong road? Is it not a sad reflection on life that we go down the years with faces neither hopeful nor happy?

And as the minutes slipped by here and there a waiting one quietly rose and went out. And it seemed symbolic of the way we each will, when our time comes, quietly arise and go forth to the next stage of our endless journey.

Barbara Boyd.

HEART and HOME PROBLEMS BY MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1)—What will take ink stains out of white serge? (2)—How late should a girl stay out when she is in company with a gentleman? (3)—Is it improper for a girl to take a glass of beer when she is with a fellow? (4)—Is it a good thing for a girl when she is just married, to work, or should she stay at home when they just live in a furnished house? (5)—Is it improper to talk back to an older person when you are in the right?

BLUE EYES AND BROWN EYES. (1)—If the stain is fresh, soak in milk. When milk is discolored, throw out and use fresh milk. For an older stain, drop a little oxalic acid on it, let stand a few minutes, then rinse in water to which a little ammonia has been added. Repeat until stain is gone. (2)—She ought to come by 11 o'clock, unless she is under 18 and then she should be home by 10 o'clock anyway. (3)—A nice girl will not do it.

(4)—If she has nothing to keep her busy it will do her no harm to earn a little money with the understanding that every cent of it is to be saved toward beginning a real home as soon as possible. Her husband should support her from the beginning. (5)—Never talk back unless absolutely necessary; then do it courteously.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have greatly admired a woman for the past six weeks—so much so as to follow behind her for blocks. She has never given me the least encouragement. She seems to be a beautiful woman every way. A few evenings ago I was standing with a number of fellows. This lady passed. One of my party bowed very courteously. I inquired her name and to my disappointment learned she was a grasswidow, the fellow concluding with the remark, "When they can't live with one man it's ditty with the next."

That remark has often been made about widows. Yet this one's husband may not have appreciated her or they were mismatched, etc. It is "getting my goat." What is your opinion.

LONELY BACHELOR.

Sometimes a woman with a beautiful nature marries a man with whom it is impossible for a good woman to live. I do not think any woman becomes a "grass widow" without a great deal of provocation. It is bad enough for a woman to have the sorrow and disappointments of an unhappy marriage, without having people say unkind things about her. If you think she is the right sort, make her acquaintance, learn what she is like on closer view, and if you are satisfied make up your mind to trust her no matter what others say.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1)—Upon being asked his name, should a man say "Mr. So-and-So," or would the surname alone be sufficient? (2)—Would it be proper for a young man to correspond with a young lady he had never seen? (3)—Everybody knows he is a "Mr.," so it is not necessary for him to mention the prefix. (4)—Only a "bonehead" would do it.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: A young lady 21 years of age has been engaged to a young man of 22 for three years. Reason of long engagement: the age and financial circumstances of the young man. The young lady's mother dies a few months before the approaching marriage. The young man has been an intimate friend of the family for years. Is it not his place to be at the funeral at the side of the fiancée?

DIET AND HEALTH HINTS

By DR. T. J. ALLEN Food Specialist

SUGGESTION AS AID TO SIMPLE DIET.

The objection to judicious selection of food is urged by many, that the suggestion that one has a weak stomach and must not eat certain foods, is injurious, according to well established principles. There is apparent truth in this, but the rule works both ways. If the reason is first convinced that certain foods are better than others and that certain methods of eating and of food selection are chosen because study and observation and experiment have discovered certain important facts in relation to diet, and a suitable diet is then chosen, gradually adopted, in spite of the indisposition to change and the difficulty of it, and if when the selected diet is adopted the thought is held in mind that this particular diet is superior to that in ordinary use, the suggestion will be beneficial and it should be constant. Observation of the effects of restricted diet in sanitariums shows that diet is one of the best "carriers" of suggestion. It is now generally admitted that the benefit from the use of drugs is largely due to suggestion and that the benefit of the suggestion follows even when the drug may be injurious, and the same is true of food, but sane reasoning cannot draw from this the conclusion, "Eat anything."

ARE YOU TOO LAZY TO BE HEALTHY?

When one remembers that in his youth Theodore Roosevelt was a sickly boy, and that today he is possessed of a physique so hardy and blood so pure that even a serious bullet wound cannot incapacitate him entirely, it is well to stop and think how this splendid condition of body was secured.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, Oct. 26, 1872.—Harry Robinson and his famous Troupe of Minstrels are announced to appear at the Opera House Thursday evening next. Prominent among the many novelties is that of the six end men, a sight never witnessed on the minstrel stage. The six comedians are Billy McAllister, Milt Barlow, John Henshaw, B. Ginniver, and Harry Robinson, together with the largest silver cornet band on the road. Their style of advertising and their street parade are new and original.

Among the connoisseurs we frequently hear the name of Miss Emma Chase mentioned as one who's skill as an artist was eventually brought her into public notice. And from the few specimens of his ingenuity and ability in that direction which have come to our notice we are led to coincide with the opinions of those better able than ourselves to judge upon such matters. At the late fair she had several oil paintings on exhibition in the fine art hall, all of which indicate in an unusual degree the work of a well trained hand directed by a correct and artistic sense. Miss Chase has just entered upon her career as an artist and there is every reason to hope her future will be a successful one.

Safe of a Promising Horse: D. W. Watt has sold his four-minute five year old horse to a Milwaukee man for $215. He is a promising young horse and will develop to value with in the next year. David has every reason to feel satisfied over the circumstance of being born fortunate instead of good looking. His horse speculations are invariably profitable.

UNCLE WALT The Poet Philosopher Copyright, 1909, by George Matthew Adams BY WALT MASON

If your stomach's working right, doing duty day and night, you will find this life a blessing, sure enough, but when it has jumped the track everything seems out of whack, and the road on which you toddle's pretty rough. When a man can sit and eat steaks and latters and repeat, you will find he is contented and serene; but the man whose stomach groans every time he gnaws some bones, gets to be a chronic sorehead, cross and mean. Oh, his works are full of storms, and he clamors for reforms, and he grouches round the village for the year; when, if he could eat some kraut without turning inside out, you would see him wear a smile from ear to ear. People talk of broken hearts, and they weep by fits and starts, telling how they long to slumber in the tomb; if their stomachs would allow them to eat a chunk of cow, they would soon forsake their brooding and their gloom. Nearly all the grief and woe that we human beings know come from stomachs out of kilter, sure as fate; when man's stomach's in repair he's as frisky as a bear and his bosom has no room for fear or hate.

Unknown Eskimos.

There exists no connected account of the material culture of the great group of Eskimo dwellings around the mouth of the Mackenzie river. Still meager is our knowledge of that extinct Eskimo culture of which the sole witnesses are the ruins in the islands in the north Canadian archipelago; these islands form the most northerly bridge between the western Eskimo and Greenland.

OCTOBER 26

IF THIS IS YOUR BIRTHDAY

You will grieve over some love affair. Take care that you are not the one guilty of the wrong. Your year will be full of annoyances and will profit you little, unless you can draw strength from your experiences. In this case you will look back without regret.

Those born today will have many difficulties and disappointments, but they are born to succeed and will learn to laugh at trouble from sheer familiarity with it. They will have the power of seeing beyond it.

Good Substitute for Reality.

A New York woman who likes to have flowers in her windows but finds it impracticable to do so in the city has artificial ones painted on the glass. The windows are high up above the street and the flowers are in colors to enable them to be seen more easily. The apartment house in which the woman lives is on Broadway, and the effect of the art is very striking.

A Log On The Track

of the fast express means serious trouble ahead if not removed, so does loss of appetite. It means lack of vitality, loss of strength and nerve weakness. If appetite fails, take Electric Bitters quickly to overcome the cause by toning up the stomach and curing the indigestion. Michael Hess, helmer of Lincoln, Neb., had been sick over three years, but six bottles of Electric Bitters put him right on his feet again. They have helped thousands. They give pure blood, strong nerves, and good digestion. Only 50 cents at People's Drug Co.

Life Is Too Short.

There isn't anything in the theory that children will grow up to be grateful for the whippings they get; this is a fairly healthful country, but people don't live long enough for that.—Atchison Globe.

The Lady of the Mount

CHAPTER X.

The Cloister in the Air.

Irrespective of environment, the cloister of the Mount would have been a delight to the eye, but upheld in mid air, with the sky so near and the sands so far below, it seemed more an inspiration of fancy than a work of hand. Dainty, delicate, its rose-colored columns of granite appeared too thin for tangible weight; the tympan's sculptured designs, fanciful as the carvings in some palace of a poet's dream. Despite, however, this first impression of evanescence, it carried a charm against the ravages of time, and ethereal though it was, had rested like a crown on the grim head of the rock through the ages.

Once a place for quiet meditation, the cloister had, through a whirligig of change, become the favorite resort of the Governor, for dejeuner, or afternoon tea, and, on occasions, for the transaction of much profane though necessary labor pertaining to his office and private concerns. He busied himself there now; or had been busying himself there, but paused to look up from the large book before him, whose pages were inscribed with items and figures. His finger, following the mental computation, remained stationary. Fougue—tax upon fires; banvin—duties on wine; vingtain—the lord's right to his share of the produce; minage—his due from each mine or half settler of coin—consideration of these usually all-important matters seemed for the moment to have been forgotten.

He leaned back, and as he sat thus, the light and shadow playing on him, the dark, steely eyes looked the more sunken, the hard, cynical lips beneath the white mustache the more cruel, the spare figure the more alert and ready, as if to grapple with some hidden danger.

“Tarrive en ce pays
Do Basse Normandie.”
At one of the apertures looking out to the barren waste of sand stood the Lady Elise; the words of the old Norman chant she was singing in desultory fashion rang softly, oddly, in that spot, where black-clad brethren for centuries had been wont to tread. Me-

“I—I Feel Very Well.”

chanically the Governor listened, but the voice soon ceased abruptly and again, after the manner of one of orderly habits, he beat over the big book; once more the curving finger slid up and down, and parsimony, the vice of the aged, had begun to shine from his pinched features, when a footstep rang on the marble pavement. “Your Excellency sent for me?” The commandant stood respectfully near. The Governor closed the book with deliberation; lifted his eyes. “The prisoners that were taken last night are safely housed?”

“Housed? Yes, your Excellency! But we have little room. The upper cells are all occupied; the dungeons, fairly full! Even the In-pence and Les Deux Jumeaux have been pressed into service.”

“Housed? Yes, your Excellency! But we have little room. The upper cells are all occupied; the dungeons, fairly full! Even the In-pence and Les Deux Jumeaux have been pressed into service.”

“Read it.” The commandant obeyed. “Our schooner, belonging to his Excellency, the Governor, was returning last night to the Mount with troops—reinforcements for the garrison from St. Dard—when it happened quite by accident near a ship, maneuvering at a respectful distance from the island of Casque. The night was dark and cloudy, but our men got a look at her and suspecting who she was and knowing her armament, against our will, we felt obliged to bear away. She, having no reason to think us other than a fishing schooner, or that we were freighted with troops instead of cod, did not follow and we had pressed out of sight, and were rounding the island when we ran into two small sail-boats that had just set out from there.”

“To join the ship of this outlaw!” interposed the Governor. “Go on!” shortly.

“We hailed; their answer was unsatisfactory; we ordered them to halt, whereupon they tried to sail away. We followed and overtaking them, commanded them to surrender. Their leader, who was the Black Seigneur himself, refused, and we attacked.”

“Dien! We attacked! But what then? Eh, what then?”

“With fury they responded; in spite of their inferiority of numbers tried to board us. Bravely our men repulsed them; yet still they persisted; led by their captain, the Black Seigneur, had gained the deck when a chance shot struck him. As he fell back, the others tried to escape; one boat was sunk.”

“And the other, bearing their leader, got away!” interrupted the Governor harshly.

“In the confusion—yes, your Excellency.” The Governor waved his hand impatiently.

“By this time the ship of the Black Seigneur had drawn nearer and our men put about and made for the Mount with a number of prisoners. Several shots were sent after us, but we managed to reach port.”

“The officer in charge of the troops thinks this fellow, their leader, was wounded severely—fatally perhaps?”

“He thinks it most probable, your Excellency.”

For some time the Governor, with frowning brows, sipped silently from a glass of liquor at his elbow, and, stiff, motionless, the commandant waited; close at hand, a dove plumed itself on the roof of the cloister walk; beyond, the girl again began to sing fitfully.

Out of the corner of his eye the commandant dared look at her, leaning now against the wall, the clear-cut, white features outlined against an illimitable blue background.

“Leg amours—”
Involuntarily he started to raise a hand to his warlike mustache, when abruptly was his wandering attention recalled. “The man ashore I spoke to you about, has been taken into custody?”

“Well,” the cold eyes flashed, “it is not intended for upright people! But the man you were ordered to arrest!” with sudden sharpness; “the man from the shore! Send him to me!”

“At once, your Excellency!” And responding promptly to his superior's mood, the commandant saluted briskly, and retired.

“What man?” The drapery of her gown drawn back, the Lady Elise stood poised on the court's low coping between the fairy-like pillars.

“No one you know, my dear.”

“Which means—it is none of my concern?”

“Not at all.” His voice was now perfunctory; and his expression, as he surveyed her, slightly questioning. “You are looking somewhat pale today.”

“Am I?” carelessly. “I—I feel very well.”

As she spoke, she went to him and leaned over the back of his chair. “Mout pere, won't you do something for me?”

“What?”

He reached up; the long, cold fingers stroked the shapely, warm ones. “One should never leap into the dark with a promise,” he answered. “Especially to a woman.”

“Not even when that woman is one's own daughter?” she asked, alighting to the arm of the chair.

He regarded the bright face now thoughtful; the lips, usually laughing, set sensitively. “Is it another trip to the court, or do you wish to turn this stern old Mount again into a palace of pleasure? To invite once more the Paris lords and ladies—the King, himself, perhaps? It would not be the first time a monarch has been entertained at the Mount—or a Marquis, either, eh? Shall we ask the Marquis?”

She made an impatient movement. “I want you to promise to break up the terrible iron case, and—”

“Tut!” Jocosely he pinched the fair cheek. “A girl's thoughts should be of the court and the cavaliers.”

She turned away her head. “You treat me like a child,” she said with a flash in her eyes.

“No, no! Like a woman,” he laughed. “But the Marquis—perhaps he could not come here; perhaps he is too much concerned with the gaieties of Paris!” Her figure straightened; she was about to walk away, when—

“You ride this afternoon?” he asked. “I had not thought of it.”

“If you do I desire that some one accompany you.” Her face changed; she looked at him quickly, and half turned. “Remember Saladin as well, and—keep closer to the Mount in the future.”

“Poor Saladin!” she breathed, with averted glance.

“He got his deserts!” answered the Governor harshly. “An ugly trick that of his to bolt and leave you stranded at the extreme point of the mainland where the bay swings around!”

“The grand tide—it came in so fast—and made so much noise—”

“It frightened him! Well, fortunate it was, indeed, you were not on his back; that you had already reached the point, and had had time to dismount! An unpleasant experience, nevertheless—with the water separating you from the Mount, and a great curve of land to be walked before you could arrive at a human habitation!”

“It wasn't a very comfortable feeling,” she acknowledged, flushing. “And if the fisherman hadn't subsequently seen you and taken you across in his little boat, you would have been more uncomfortable later. You rewarded him well, I trust?”

“He—wouldn't take anything.”

“And you neglected to inquire his name?”

“I—did not think.”

“You were so glad to get back?” remarked the Governor, regarding her closely. “What sort of man was he?”

“Old.”

“And—”

“That—that is all I remember.”

“Hum! Not very lucid. No doubt you were too overwrought, my dear, to be in an observant mood.” His voice sank absently; his fingers sought among the papers, and, as his glance fell, the girl walked away. Again she leaned on the parapet, and once more regarded the barren waste below—the figures of the cockle-seekers, mere specks, the shadow of the Mount, stamped on the sand, with the saint, a shapeless form, holding up a tapering black line—a sword—at the apex.

“She is keeping back something. What?” Above an official-looking document the Governor watched her, his lips compressed, his eyes keen; then shrugged his shoulders and resumed his occupation. The death-like hush of an aerial region surrounded them; the halcyon peace of a seemingly chimerical cloister; until suddenly broken by an indubitable clangor—harsh, hard!—of a door, opening, shutting.

The Governor lifted his head in annoyance; the dove on the roof of the cloister-walk flew away, and a short, fat man, breathing hard, appeared.

“Pardon, your Excellency! But the drafts! They seem sometimes to sweep up from the very dungeons themselves, and—”

“Well?”

Beppo cut short excuse, or explanation. “A prisoner is waiting without. The man, Sanchez, from the shore! Monsieur le Commandant, who brought him, told me to inform you.”

The Governor considered a moment with down-bent brows. “You may show him in, but first,” he glanced up with a frown, “I have a question to put to you.”

“Your Excellency?”

“This morning you thought fit to apprise me,” Beppo looked uncomfortable, “in view of the events of last night—that you saw yesterday this fellow, Sanchez, setting out in a sailboat, accompanied by a priest—a fact that might have been of great service to me, had I been aware of it in season!” The Governor paused to allow the full weight of his disapproval to be felt. “At what hour did you see them start out?”

“About dusk, the time of the ‘grand tide,’ was the crestfallen answer. “I was following the shore, feeling anxious on account of the Lady Elise, who, I knew, had gone in the direction of the forest, when I saw them, some distance out, but not too far to recognize this fellow's boat and in it two men, one of them in the black robes of a priest. I attached no importance to the incident until—”

The Governor interrupted. “You may send the prisoner in,” he said shortly. “No—wait!” Toward the spot where the girl had been standing the Governor glanced quickly, but that post of observation was now vacant, and his Excellency more deliberately looked around; caught no sight of her. “You may send him in here,” he said, “alone. I will speak with the prisoner in private.”

Invention of the Lifeboat.
The most effective means of lifesaving in the event of a storm is the lifeboat, the first one of which was launched on the Thames on January 4, 1785, by Lionel Lukin, a coachmaker of an inland town near London. The first lifeboat was a Norway yawl, which he had fitted with watertight compartments, a heavy iron keel and other essentials in buoyancy and stability, which are the cardinal and requisite features of lifeboats now.

Both Disappointed.
First Billiard Player—How is it you aren't at home this evening? Second Dito—My wife's in a bad humor; she had company arrive and she wasn't ready. How about yourself? “Oh, my wife's mad, too; she got ready for company and they didn't come.”—Boston Transcript.

ACT QUICKLY

Delay Has Been Dangerous in Janesville.

Do the right thing at the right time.

Act quickly in time of danger.

In time of kidney danger Doan's

Kidney Pills are most effective. Plenty of evidence of their worth.

Mrs. R. W. Phillips, Church St., Clinton, Wis., says:

“I suffered for years from pains in the small of my back and limbs and often my body swollen. My feet and ankles were swollen and I had puffy spots beneath my eyes. Someone told me that the failure of my kidneys to remove the uric poison from my system caused my suffering. I tried various kidney medicines but was not helped until I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills. Since using them I have enjoyed much better health. I trust that other kidney sufferers will follow my example and try Doan's Kidney Pills. I still take Doan's Kidney Pills occasionally when in need of a kidney medicine and I am always benefited. You may continue the publication of my former testimonial.”

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Ruskin's Protest.
Utopianism: that is another of the devil's pet words. I believe the quiet admission, which we are all of us so ready to make, that because things have long been wrong it is impossible that they should ever be right, is one of the most fatal sources of misery and crime.—Ruskin, “Architecture and Painting.”

Varying Wood Consumption.
In Germany 37 cubic feet of timber per capita is taken annually from her forests; France is able to get along with but 25 cubic feet; while in this country the consumption is 250 cubic feet per capita.

Diogenes Modernized.
He discoursed from a grocer's tab, did that pesterous old duff, they called Diogenes. He argued with the other men and stole some codfish now and then, or swiped the grocer's cheese.

HE WAS VERY CARELESS.
Never brushed his coat. Carried around a great lot of dandruff with him. One day a friend told him of Hall's Hair Remover. He talked with his doctor about it. Then used it. Now his scalp is clean and healthy. No dandruff. No falling hair. No danger of staining the hair, either.

“Last of Sicilian Bandits.”
Corsica has got rid of the old fashioned brigand, and the “last of the Sicilian bandits”—perhaps a disputed title—was lately laid by the heels and is now facing the ordeal of his trial at Ajaccio. He is Giuseppe Salomone. He is a dandy, and has always paid particular attention to his clothes. He has an expensive taste in perfume and in gloves. He is a poet. His time in prison has been spent in writing a poetic drama of his life's experiences, and he has written a good deal of commendable verse. He is said to have made a fortune in brigandage.

Lively Letter Written From Camp In Early Days of War

An interesting letter, in the humorous light thrown on some of the details of camp life by the writer, was published in the Janesville Daily Gazette of August 26, 1861. The writer was George F. Saunders, one of the members of the Janesville company in the Second Wisconsin Regiment, to a friend, from Fort Corcoran, Va., on August 9. The letter is
as follows:

We are sweating away as usual
in middling health. Are my friends all well? If so Amen and peace be with you all till I see you which I hope will be soon as I understand that after I have been six months in service I will see a month's furlough. If we get safely through the coming fight, we are expecting I think that there will be an attack on Washington, Harpers Ferry and the Lower Bridge. The enemy are reported to have 300,000 men. McLean is on duty to day and if he is not sweating there are not any stakes in Ireland. He used to whistle Dixie but he has played out on that amusement. If you want to hear me sing come down to Old Virginia and you can get the worth of your money.
Nobody but the darkeys can do this subject full justice. Most of them are genuine boobies, though there are some who are a little mixed. They put on a good many airs and then go on their knees; they begin to work
and then commence to sweat, and then Lord Moses it would do you good to see them. Such work and such sweat;
you can not have any idea what hot weather is until you see or try it.
We expected a fight last night. Cannons were cleaned, and everything put in order. Troops were on every corner. You should have been on Arlington heights and wonder where all the men came from. Lieut. Mc-Lean gave us a little skirmish and if we do not die we are as wet as rats.
A friend has just come into our camp
and distributed one of the native productions of the country in the shape of a mammoth watermelon. After stowing away the article for fear of consequences we took out some pepper sauce and came out sound. Some secure prisoners were taken last night.
They looked hard. We have heard from good authority that all the rebels subsist on is what they can steal from Manassa to Richmond. They have taken the last morsel they can find in houses and in many cases have turned families out of doors near naked.

One gentleman was in camp the other day, a good unionist. He came to our tent and we knew he is sound by the
the papers he got from the government. He has been clobbered out of his home and everything he has in this world. He left for fear of being drafted into the rebel army. His family is scattered and he, noble looking as he is, is completely broken hearted.
Such cases occur every day. The time is not far distant when those wretches will commit such outrages will realize there is a God in Israel. I have seen enough to satisfy me that war is sickening. The sight of the battles we have been in are enough to chill any man. Cutting, tearing and smashing the features of a man that his nearest friends would know him except by a small strip of button or some little memento given by some loving one is truly terrible. During the last battle
one young man said to me "Sergeant Saunders, you seem to have no troubles, you well know that we are to have terrible fight; hear those cannons. I think I can fight but there is something; (pulling a picture out of his vest pocket) if I could only see her once more all would be well."
I told him to pluck up courage, but I could see plainly that there was a heavy weight over his heart. He replied, "I would give everything I ever possessed to see my family once more and shake hands with them." He wiped a tear from his eye and the drum beat a double quick advance. He went into the assault all hands like Napoleon, and I heard that he was the first to be shot at the right of the brigade.
I had no time to look after him and I lost him and many others.

I occasionally look about through the different regiments especially the
New York Highlanders. They were never us in the battle. Archy is acquainted with a good many of the officers and men. The best they had was none too good for us. How many of them hit the dust the papers will tell you. Truly this is the beginning of our sorrows but the end is not yet.
Sorrow but the end is not yet.
GEORGE F. SAUNDERS.

DINNER STORIES

Mrs. Blanc was giving a tea party on her yacht. The affair for some reason was dragging drearily. The guests talked of nothing but the weather, and even in this talk there would come long, deathly silences.
Suddenly Mrs. Blanc, losing her balance, fell heavily against her mother-in-law, who sat beside the low rail,
and with a moaning cry the dear old lady went headforemost overboard.
Of course, she was rescued; but afterward Mr. Blanc took Mrs. Blanc privately to task. "How clumsy you are," he said, "to knock mother into the water like that. I'm afraid she won't care to visit us again in a hurry. You really should be more careful." "Now, George," said Mrs.
Blanc, "be reasonable. I had to do something. I simply had to. Didn't you see how our party was dragging?"

Immediately following the murder of the gambler, Rosenthal, in New York, the papers were full of stories to the effect that members of the uniformed police force cleared the street in front of the Hotel Metropole in order that the assassin might not their victim without interruption.

At The Theatre

"KINDLING."
Sarah Padden, the interesting
young actress who is soon to appear here in Charles Kroyer's play of the day, "Kindling," began her stage career less than a decade ago. Oddly enough, she had never been in a theatre until she made her appearance on the stage. Miss Padden is the protege of the widely known Chicago priest, the Rev. Father Maurice J.
Dorney, pastor of the St. Gabriel's church. Father Dorney had intended that Miss Padden should become a teacher in his parochial school. To that end he arranged for her to attend a school of education. Later, at the suggestion of the Mother Superior, he went to see Will J. Davis, manager of the Illinois Theatre in Chicago, and beloved by the theatrical profession as "Uncle Will," with the idea that Mr. Davis might obtain a small engagement for Miss Padden
in some recognized dramatic company. It was believed that practical experience would be of value in her work as a teacher. Mr. Davis found employment for the girl in the company of Oris Skinner. Three years later, because of the illness of Laura Hope Crewes, Miss Padden became Mr. Skinner's leading woman in the play "The Honor of the Family." Her work here attracted the attention of the late Henry B. Harris, who specially engaged her for the role of Annie Jeffries in the Charles Kroyer play,
"The Third Degree." Miss Padden's triumph in this part was a matter of theatrical history. She was greeted by enormous audiences in all parts of the country, and pronounced by newspapers and public "a second Mrs. Fiske." It is interesting to note that Miss Padden appeared as Annie Jeffries more than seven hundred times.

In "Kindling," the young actress has a particularly congenial role. By temperament and type she is admirably suited to Maggie Schultz. More than that, she loves the part, an essential requisite for really convincing work.
At the conclusion of the present
tour, Miss Padden will go to Australia, appearing in a repertoire of three plays, two of which will be "Kind-ling" and "The Third Degree." The remaining play for the antipodes has not been decided upon, but it is more than likely will be "Merely Mary-Ann," the appealing Zangwill drama in which Eleanor Robson achieved considerable success.

WORLD."

of it over and over again. You laugh at its funny situations, you wonder at its daring theme, you have heard of these things, but you have never seen them before. "A Girl of the Underworld" is as logical as the air you breathe, its common sense theme is prevailing throughout four beautiful acts of laughs and surprises. The story itself was written from an incident in real life. Therefore, it is natural. That a theme in real life that can be elaborated upon the stage and furnish food for thought and amusement is the successful play of the present generation. "A Girl of the Underworld" is just such a play.
There is a laugh a minute, with a touch of nature that is heart interest.
The people of Janesville will find in this play something new, something novel, and as successful as Gilbrat-er.

If You Would Have Health

Keep busy and keep clean. Keep clean—there's the rub! But you will have to rub more than you ordinarily do and use more than soap if you want to really get clean.

The ordinary bath does not clean the skin. It only removes the dirt from the surface. It does not remove the waste matter that clogs the pores of the skin. The skin is the outlet for a large portion of the waste matter of the body.
If its pores become clogged up this poisonous matter is retained in the blood and ill health results.

The Turkish Bath, The Electric Light Bath, Massage are the best means of putting your skin in perfect condition.
